L. E. ANDERSON CO. NEGOTIATES FOR REORGANIZATION

According to R. B. Fairchild, Member of Firm in Receivership, Business May Be Resumed Soon.

CREDITORS CLASH OVER METHODS

Larger Group, Represented by Temporary Receivers, Is in Favor of Slow Liquidation.

Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co., known into receivership and suspended from four stock exchanges yesterday, is carrying on negotiations for a reorganization which virtually assures early resumption of business. Ralph B. Fairchild, a member of the firm, announced today in the firm's offices at 711 S. Charles street.

"The negotiations are not yet quite complete," Fairchild said. "But it is safe to say that their completion is virtually assured and that we shall shortly resume business."

Fairchild declined to say with what group the arrangements were being made. Asked to fix the time when he believed the firm would be reopened, he said it would be a matter of days.

TWO GROUPS SEEK CONTROL.

Meanwhile, two groups of creditors of the company, each striving for control of the firm, are expected to fight to some sort of a conclusion, temporary at least, within the next 48 hours.

One of the groups, consisting of the larger creditors and including those who have claims running well into six figures, is represented by the temporary receivers, Charles D. P. Hamilton Jr. and Charles H. Abeken. They were appointed by Judge Hartman yesterday about the time the company was suspended by the New York and St. Louis Stock Exchanges, the New York Court and the Chicago Board of Trade.

BANKRUPTCY SUIT FILED.
With this group temporarily in control, the second group, apparently consisting of smaller creditors with claims based upon professional services and sales of merchandise, rather than upon trading relations, went into Federal Court and asked that the company be thrown into bankruptcy.

The bankruptcy petition, alleged the company was insolvent and it had preferred one creditor, Alfred L. Hupfeld, by paying him $115 last Wednesday. The petitioning creditors and the amount of their claims: Emmet V. Thompson, $40,000 for delinquent insurance premiums; S. G. Adams Co., $40,000 for merchandise; Buxton & Skinner, Printing & Stationery Co., $10,000 for merchandise.

TWO POLICIES OF LIQUIDATION.
No order will be entered in the bankruptcy case until the receivers and other interested groups have had an opportunity to be heard by the court. It is regarded as a foregone conclusion the receivers will meet the bankruptcy suit since they are committed to a process of liquidation and have declared that the company's creditors, who have claims aggregating $90,000, will be paid in full if liquidation is carried out in an orderly manner.

Bankruptcy, on the other hand, could bring about a more rapid distribution of assets. As the result that many of the stock and bond owners held by the broken-down house would have to be paid at less price with consequent loss to creditors.

Receiver Hamilton, who has refused to discuss reports that his suit against the company totals $10,000, told reporters yesterday that an audit would shortly be completed that would give a full appraisal of the company's finances.

In the meantime, it is understood, that, even under a favorable process of liquidation the original investment of the six partners, said to be $1,500,000, will be wiped out.

The partners are Arthur C. Hillman, ranking member who is now in his home at 91 Arundel place; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Hilman; W. A. Andrew, Andrew H. Kaufmann, Marshall Battle and Fairchild.

John A. Ald of Ald & Co. was elected president of the St. Louis Stock Exchange today to succeed Arthur Hilman, who was automatically succeeded when his firm was suspended yesterday morning and had been vice president.

ANCO INVESTMENT CO.

The existence of an Anco Investment Co., related to Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co., by the fact that two of the partners are on its directorate, became public today, the firm, it was understood, was

LOCOMOTIVE MOVIE CAUSES PANIC IN PEASANT AUDIENCE

Twelve Trampled as Rumanians Flee From Pictured Train on Screen.

By the Associated Press.
GEORGESTI, Rumania, Jan. 22.—The introduction of motion pictures into this village last night caused a stampede in which 12 persons were trampled, some of them being seriously injured.

A peasant audience, no member of which had seen a movie before, was assembled in the hall to view a thriller, and suddenly the scene flashed to a locomotive roaring straight down the track. The engine appeared to rush out from the screen into the hall and the spectators, who seemed to be too much for the spectators, fled in a wild rush for the door and in the ensuing frenzy all fifteen of the building were wrecked.

CASE TO JURY THIS AFTERNOON

Co-Owner of Buckingham Annex Declares None of Meetings Described by Clerk Took Place.

A gathering which packed Judge Taylor's courtroom heard the arguments to the jury, this afternoon, in the trial of Ralph Pierson, charged with first-degree murder in the burning of the Buckingham Annex, of which he was part owner. The fire, Dec. 5, 1927, resulted in seven deaths. The State charges that Pierson plotted the fire to collect insurance, and is asking the death penalty.

Charles M. Hay, Pierson's lawyer, spoke for two hours, summing up the State's testimony and charging that the stories of the State's two chief witnesses, self-confessed plotters of the fire, were false. They are Robert H. Cotham, night clerk of the Buckingham Hotel, and Andrew B. Meadows, night watchman of the Annex, who is under death sentence. The fourth arson-murder defendant, Lewis E. Brown, co-owner with Pierson, is on trial.

Mrs. Martin was slain, the girl said, to prevent her from testifying against Dr. S. A. Brainard, charged with performing an illegal operation.

The girl, a waitress at Seminole, Okla., confessed she shot Mrs. Martin to death for a promised $100, of which she said she received only $50.

Mrs. Martin was slain, the girl said, to prevent her from testifying against Dr. S. A. Brainard, charged with performing an illegal operation which led to the death of Esther O'Dare Nidififer.

Mrs. Sullivan said Paul Jones, Coffeyville automobile salesman, had hired her to commit the murder.

Jones, Dr. Brainard and a taxi-cab driver were arrested with Miss Sullivan and all face murder charges.

GRAPEFRUIT THROWN AT VALLEE

Three Young Men Attempt to Halt Performance in Boston.

By the Associated Press.
BOSTON, Jan. 23.—Rudy Vallee was attacked with two over-ripe grapefruit during a performance at the Metropolitan Theater last night. It was the final performance of the opening day of a week's engagement and Vallee was in the midst of one of his characteristic melodies. Without warning, the fruit was thrown from the balcony. Neither of the grapefruit struck the singer, but one hit the drummer's cymbals and the other splattered over the stage props.

He took no notice of the interruption until he had finished the song. Then, stepping to the front of the stage, he took the hecklers to task for their discourtesy. Three young men, whose names were withheld, were taken into custody by ushers and turned over to the police, and later released when Vallee and the theater management agreed to press charges.

INQUIRY INTO USE OF COLLEGE LABOR FOR OUTSIDE WORK

Audit Ordered at Cape Girardeau as Result of Building of Tourist Camp by School's President.

NO IRREGULARITY, DR. SERENA SAYS

Admits State Employees and Machinery Were Utilized
but Asserts Proper Payments Were Made.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Jan. 23.—On instructions from Gov. Caulfield, M. J. McDonough, a State auditor, arrived here today to look into the accounts of the Southeast Missouri State Teachers' College.

This step was taken after the Governor was informed that the school's president, Dr. Joseph Archibald Serena, used college machinery, materials and supplies and paid laborers with checks drawn on the school's funds in construction of a tourist camp which he is building on Highway No. 61 near here.

Dr. Serena readily discussed the matter and attributed criticism of his action to a disgruntled employee who had been discharged. He explained that construction of the camp, known as Cape Tourist Homes, on a 10-acre tract he purchased last September, was at the suggestion of Mrs. Serena, who has been in direct charge of the work.

He said Mrs. Serena, preceding check was drawn on payment to the Southeast Missouri Teachers' College of $227 and $134 on Jan. 6, and numerous other checks to workmen, supply and fixture houses and material concerns. He said the checks to the college were in payment for work done by persons regularly employed at the college who would have been out of work otherwise.

Unable to Find Bills.

Itemized bills, Mrs. Serena said, will show that the checks to the school were in payment for the labor of these men, stone, wire and other supplies, as well as rental on travel trailers and trailers. She was not able to find the bills today.

Dr. Serena owed bills from an electrical supply house to the college, but marked "Serena account." The president said he saw nothing wrong with the method of paying for labor, since it prevented confusion.

Work on the tourist camp was superintended by Vernon Chapman, superintendent of the grounds and buildings at the college. He said he instructed the timekeeper to render a bill for time worked by his employees on the Serena job and declared that every dime's worth of labor or material was paid for by Mrs. Serena.

"College trucks naturally were used," the president said, "because we bought steel taken from quarters on school property. These men would have been out of work if they had not had the machinery to use and we paid a fair rental, but I don't recall what that item was."

"Freely we rent machinery for street improvements and other construction on the same basis and the school gets the money. Mrs. Serena paid for the gas and oil used."

Says Wire Came From College. Boyd Kilian, a laborer employed irregularly at 35 cents an hour, said he worked five days on the tourist camp, operating a tractor drawn by a college tractor. Some wire for electric fixtures was obtained from the college power house, he said.

James Patrick, who did the wiring, said he was instructed to keep account of the wire taken from the power house and to charge equipment purchased to the college account, but to make note that it was for the "Serena account." He said his regular monthly check was the only compensation he had received and there was nothing to indicate he had worked for anyone except the school.

Similar statements about the manner in which they had been paid were made by Robert and Elmo McCune.

Dr. Serena became president of the college 10 years ago and was responsible for the erection of Houch Stadium, a modern athletic plant on what was once an unusually abandoned quarry. The stadium was built for about $150,000 through constant economies over a period of four years. It was dedicated Oct. 3 at ceremonies attended by Gov. Caulfield.

ganized to allow a group of wealthy men, among them Frank C. Rand, chairman of the board, and Andrew Johnson, vice president of the International Shoe Co., to back Arthur Hilmer and his associates financially, without becoming partners in the brokerage firm.

Under New York Stock Exchange rules members must be individuals or partnerships. Corporations are barred from membership. Fairchild, questioned today about the action of the investment Co., declined to discuss it. When asked whether Rand and Johnson were connected with it he said that he did not, but added:

"Mr. Johnson and Mr. Rand had work untroubling to prevent this present situation from happening. I never saw two men work as hard as they did."

Late yesterday the partners filed formal answers in Circuit Court to the receivership suit filed by Walter Wehrle, Clayton attorney, with a claim of $1800 for legal services in their answer they consent to the appointment of Receivers Husted and Aebken under Wehrle's suit.

Unnecessary Loss Faced.

"Come now the defendants," says the answer, "to admit they are solvent, and to state that their property and assets are amply sufficient to meet all claims and liabilities to creditors. They admit that there are suits being threatened against them and their firm, the result of which would cause unnecessary loss to them, but defendants deny such suits would render defendants insolvent or would prevent all creditors from receiving the full amount of their claims, but defendants state notwithstanding all such threatened suits that the defendants have and would have property sufficient to meet and fully pay all creditors and claimants.

Defendants further state that an administration of their property, assets and business by this court, through a receiver for a limited time would, as defendants verily believe, annoy the fears of creditors, and prevent the institution of numerous suits and bring about an orderly, economical adjustment of defendants' business and affairs, so as to result in a substantial saving."

The answer was filed by Max Sigroff as attorney for the partners. The suit under which receivership was entered was filed by Edward W. Forstel, who is an office associate of Receiver Aebken. Had 3000 Customers.

Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co. had about 3000 customers and was active in the underwriting of many investment issues. Among the issues were securities of Johnstone-Shanks-Shinko Shoe Co., Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co., Polar Bear Ice and Fuel Co., Coco-Cola Bottling Co. of Chicago, Minneapolis-Honeywell, Pedigo-Weber Shoe Co., Alligator Co., Sunset Stores, Caradine Hat preferred, Gardner Motor, Van Sickle, Great Lakes Aircraft, Johansen Bros. Shoe, Henderson Plantations, Bob's Metal and Mining, Ponchartrain Bridge.

HOOVER NOT SO DRY AS HE SEEKS, "FRIENDS" HINT

Politicians Watching Efforts of President's Supporters to Put Him on Both Sides of Prohibition

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Prohibition continues today to hold the center of the board, with the spotlight of interest focused on the White House.

Mr. Hoover, in his message transmitting the Wickerham report to Congress, came out dry, or at any rate much drier than the great majority of his commissioners. Most of them—at least six—favored immediate repeal or revision of the eighteenth amendment.

Mr. Hoover, in effect, rejected the recommendation of the majority. He "saw serious objections to the commission's proposed revision on the eighteenth amendment which is suggested by them for possible consideration at some future time if the continued effort at enforcement should not prove successful."

The President had been buffeted between two schools of thought in his party. The leaders of what may be called roughly the eastern wing of the party platform in the next Republican platform and in the electoral campaign stand dry. These leaders are in the majority, and the electoral votes on which the Republicans must count for success. They are assuming, of course, that the Democratic platform and candidates will be wet.

On the other side are the leaders from the dry areas, who have told the President that his chance of success lies in keeping the party dry.

Situation Confronting Hoover.

That, in the simplest possible terms, was the situation confronting the President when he sat down to study the report of the Wickerham Commission. He wrote the message to Congress which has been outlined. On its face, certainly, it was a dry message, and it was so interpreted by practically every newspaper and every politician.

Now, however, the air is filled with obviously inspired statements to the effect that Mr. Hoover is not nearly so dry as his message sounds. The New York Times yesterday published, anonymously, an interview with a "close friend" of the President. This informant said that the President had not closed his mind against the revision of the eighteenth amendment, that the President's position as set out in his letter to Congress had been widely misinterpreted.

The visiting executives were Gov. Ely of Massachusetts, Larson of New Jersey, Case of Rhode Island and Cross of Connecticut. Gov. White of Ohio was late in arriving owing to a delayed train. Gov. Roosevelt explained the conference as not called to deal with the present unemployment emergency, but to consider the question as a "long range problem."

"Problems relating to unemployment, its prevention and relief, have become in the past year the overshadowing problems in all industrial states," he said. "Since we in America are attempting to deal with the prevention of unemployment realistically for the first time, it is desirable that the various industrial states should consider facts and proposed solutions jointly in the hope that out of larger common knowledge and immediate discussion between the leaders of these states, some steps in a program for prevention may be made applicable to a whole industrial area rather than to one state."

The defense closed its case at 10:50 a. m.

The instructions to the jury were, in the main, those given in all first-degree murder cases. The law regarding criminal agreements of two or more persons, which are of such a character as to endanger human life, and which result in the loss of life, was explained. In such cases, all parties to the criminal agreement are fully responsible for the fatal result. The jury was told that it could convict the defendant on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice or accomplices, if it believed such statement.

On the other hand, the jury was reminded that the testimony of an accomplice is to be received with care and caution.

900 QUARTS OF LIQUOR AT WASHINGTON CONVENTION

Senator Howell Says That Was Entertainment Committee's Budget Recently.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Senator Howell (Rep.), Nebraska, told the Senate today the Entertainment Committee of a convention held recently in the Capitol "budgeted" 9000 quarts of liquor for the delegation of its delegates.

Howell said he had found that "from one foreign distillery 13,000 quarts of diplomatic whisky had come into Washington in three months, enough to provide 20 quarts for every diplomat and member of his household down to the maids and janitors."

Howell made the statement in demanding consideration of his bill for more stringent prohibition laws for the District of Columbia. He did not name the organization whose convention he referred to, but added that diplomatic was given the telephone number of a bootlegger by the chairman of the Entertainment Committee.

The Senate voted to consider the Howell bill by 39 to 29.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Jan. 23.—

$160,000 in liabilities to depositors of the defunct Home Savings Bank was reported today by accountants.

"It was not because I feared to incriminate myself, but because I was physically not in condition to be questioned then, so I refused to testify," Pierson said.

Explain His Refusal.

"Did you say at the time that you refused on the ground that it might incriminate you?" Sullivan asked.

"If I may explain that to the jury," Pierson said. "I said I refused to answer, and gave no reason. The situation was, that I was in no physical condition to be subjected to an examination of that kind."

Sullivan, over continued objections of Hay, questioned Pierson as to the attempts of insurance company representatives to get a deposition from him while he was in City Jail. It was stated, at the time, that Pierson refused to testify on the ground that he might incriminate himself. Sullivan pressed his questions as to this.

"It was not because I feared to incriminate myself, but because I was physically not in condition to be questioned then, so I refused to testify," Pierson said.

Defense Figures on Indebtedness.

Amend certified that, when the receivership began in June, 1927, $102,500 was due immediately on two mortgages; the bonded debt on the Annex, with interest due, was $203,955, and the unsecured indebtedness of the Buckingham Realty Co. was $181,622. These figures formed a total of $487,075.

Hay presented the obligation of the Buckingham Realty Co. as being $100,000 less than the amount of the Annex, which he said could not be settled from these of the company.

Amend certified that the financial condition of the Annex could not be settled from these of the company.

Amend said that the amount of the Annex insurance, as he was shown, was $295,000, which would require a total loss for collection, and the insurance saved on the fire, which destroyed the rear part of the Annex building and damaged the front part, was $163,000.

Beginning its testimony yesterday afternoon, the defense presented two witnesses from Cartersville, Ga., who attacked the past which the question related had not been brought out in Pierson's direct testimony.

Sullivan, in questions which were admitted by the Court over Hay, said, "was not the outcome of ungovernable rage, but of calculation. It was cold, premeditated murder for money. This defendant weighed money against life, and counted pieces of silver against his presence."

Pierson said he had heard the questioning and statements of Cortham and said: "It seemed to me an absurd rigmarole, as if he had been coached in what he was to say. I said to Chief Clerk Gerk, 'It's not so far as I am concerned.'

Howell said he had found that "from one foreign distillery 13,000 quarts of diplomatic whisky had come into Washington in three months, enough to provide 20 quarts for every diplomat and member of his household down to the maids and janitors."

Succumbs at 46 to Pleurisy and Influenza — Illness Followed Delay on Train Incident to an Accident.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 23.—Anna Pavlova, famous dancer, died here late last night of pleurisy and influenza. She would have been 46 years old Jan. 21. She will be buried in London.

She became ill early this week after she had been held for hours by a railroad accident in a waiting car at Dijon, France.

With her at the end were her husband and accompanist, Victor Andre; two Dutch physicians and her own Russian doctor, Prof. Valerski, who yesterday resorted to a pulmonary operation to save her life.

Death interrupted her plans to recuperate for occidentals what she had found of grace and beauty in a recent visit to Japan, China and Asiatic countries. Upon completion of this project, she intended to retire, fulfilling a promise that she would leave the stage while in the prime of life.

"Darling of Aristocrats."

Denounced by the Bolsheviks as the "Darling of Aristocrats," she died in virtual exile from Russia, where she was born, began her ballet lessons at the age of 10, and achieved her first success. In recent years, Communist influences had led to rejection of annual contributions of $500 by her to other Russian dancers.

It was during her last visit to the United States, in 1924, that she announced her marriage to d'Andre, her accompanist, later disclosing that it had taken place 17 years before. Other details of her private life she kept secret, with the plea that the public regards the artist as an illusion, and she preferred to remain so.

She was received everywhere with acclaim, in the capitals of Europe, America and in Maori and Zulu camps of New Zealand and Africa. Probably her most famous ballet was the Dance of the Dying Swan, in which she made her debut at the Metropolitan Opera house in New York in 1910.

Pavlova first danced for royalty in 1910 when she was 16 years old, barely out of the Imperial ballet school in St. Petersburg. She appeared before Czar Nicholas in a command performance.

Later, she appeared before most of the crowned heads of Europe, including Franz Josef of Austria and Alfonso of Spain. In 1927 King Christian of Denmark, seeing her dance in Copenhagen, presented a gold medal to her.

Entered School at 10.

Pavlova was born in St. Petersburg, now Leningrad, in 1885. Her father died when she was very young. When she was 8 years old another took her to the Maryinsky Theater to view a ballet and so excited the child that she wanted to begin studying at once. She was not allowed to enter school until she was 10 years old, however.

Her first appearance in London was in 1910 at the Palace Theater. She scored an immediate success and was acclaimed in London as the sensation of the century. She went to Paris, scored a triumph there and then crossed the Atlantic to New York.

She traveled extensively, dancing all over the world, and everywhere was acclaimed as a great ballerina. It is said to have gained the inspiration for her famous dance by watching swans in a public park in St. Petersburg.

Although she departed from rigid classic forms for her conception of the ballet, she criticized modern interpretations such as those of Isadora Duncan and today's jazz dancing.

She maintained a home in Paris, and at the Hotel, Hampstead, England, where she kept seven swans, for affection for which presumably was best shown by the swan dance for which she was best known.

Of Pavlova's partners, Michael Mordkin was most famous. Finally, in 1912, after frequent altercations on the stage and after it had long been rumored that professional jealousy made it impossible for them to get along together, they separated.

Two Steel Mills Reopen.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 23.—Two hundred additional men have been called back to work at two plants of the Conemaugh Steel Co., which will resume operations after several weeks' inactivity. Officials and orders promised steady work for several months. H. C. Hyding, president of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., said 1500 men, who returned to their work last week after temporary layoffs, were working full time.

SENATE "CAN'T REVOKE POWER
APPOINTMENTS"Attorney-General's Ruling on Demand for Return of Three Names Is Made on Hoover's Request.

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Attorney-General Mitchell today made public an opinion that no action the Senate now could take would revoke the appointments of the three members of the Power Commission whose names President Hoover refused to return to the Senate for reconsideration.

Attorney-General Mitchell's ruling on this point was made at President Hoover's request.

"The return of the papers to the Senate," Mitchell concluded, "would serve no lawful purpose because no action which the Senate could now take would disturb or operate to revoke the appointments."

"Either these appointments are valid because made with the unqualified consent of the Senate or they are void. There is no middle ground."

By RAYMOND F. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Senator Walsh (Dem.), Montana, advanced one step today in his attempt to oust Chairman George Otis Smith, Marcel Garsaud and Claude L. Draper from the Federal Power Commission from the Federal Power Commission, when the Senate voted, 45 to 32, to recommit the nominations of the three men to the Interstate Commerce Committee.

Immediately after the adoption of his motion to recommit, Walsh introduced a resolution to instruct the District Attorney of the District of Columbia to institute quo warrant proceedings in the District Supreme Court to test the right of the three nominees to hold office.

The resolution further provided that the District Attorney be aided by a representative of the Senate.

Walsh moved that the second resolution be referred to the Senate Audit Committee, but later accepted the suggestion of Senator Birmingham (Rep.), Connecticut, that it be referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Watson States Attitude.

The only Senator to speak directly against the motion to recommit was Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, who said he believed that the Senate had no right to reconsider the nominations of men who had been duly sworn into office.

Arguments for commitment were made today by Walsh and Norris (Rep.), Nebraska. Walsh continued his legal exposition of the case which he started yesterday, and Norris devoted himself to the general power controversy.

The removal of the three commissioners is sought because of their hasty dismissal of Solicitor Charles A. Russell and Accountant William V. King of the old commission. The two other commissioners, who were not sworn in at the time, are not under attack.

During the debate, Senator Wheeler (Dem.), Montana, declared that Frank E. Bonner, executive secretary of the old commission, who was dismissed by both Russell and King, had been favored by the Hoover administration by an appointment in the Interior Department. Russell, King and many Senators have charged that Bonner had sought to use his office with the old commission to favor the cause of the privately-owned power companies.

"Russell and other former employees of the old commission have told me," said Wheeler, "that Bonner has said that he was acting under orders from the President of the United States. Now, Bonner has been taken care of by the administration while Russell and King were kicked out. The only possible interpretation of this is that the administration approved what he had done in the commission."

Chairman Couzens of the Interstate Commerce Committee pointed out that there was no evidence in the record that Bonner had been successful in favoring the power interests.

King has been reinstated by the new commission but Russell's application for reappointment was rejected.

Norris' View of Situation.

Norris declared that, even if both men had been reinstated, his opinion would not be changed.

"It would have been merely a gesture," he said, "only to get by and through the present situation."

Addressing himself to President Hoover's message to the Senate, which said that the people would render a sobering judgment on the question, the Nebraska progressive said: "The people are rendered unerring judgment. It will be slow in coming but it will come."

The November elections showed that the people were thinking about the power question, because, "in every community where they had a chance to express themselves, they voted against organized greed and for common decency. The people's judgment will not keep in office men like these power commissioners."

Senator Jones (Rep.), Washington, who voted to recommit the nominations to committee, explained to the Senate later he did so because he didn't think it would make any difference "whether the nominations are on the calendar, before the committee, or in the waste basket."

UNION ELECTRIC CITES HEAVY NEW EXPENSES

Shows Anticipated Drop in Earnings for 1931 and 1932 at Hearing on Rates.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 23.—

The probable effect on the net earnings of Union Electric Light and Power Co. of large additions to the company's property in the next year or two was estimated in an exhibit which the company introduced yesterday at a hearing before the State Public Service Commission. The largest of the prospective additions is the Bagneuil hydro-electric plant, which the company estimates will cost $33,000,000. It is to go into service sometime this year.

The exhibit, showing the return of the company on its property in St. Louis for 1930, was from 9.09 per cent to 11.65 per cent, depending on the method of valuation used, was prepared by Harold W. Ross, chief accountant of the Public Service Commission. The company sought to have it introduced as a commission exhibit, but when Associate City Counselor Ferris of St. Louis objected, was allowed to go in as a company exhibit.

It showed that the company's return would drop from 9.09 per cent beginning with year 1931, would still leave in 1932, would recover somewhat in 1933. Using the reproduction cost as the rate base it would drop as low as 5.96 per cent in 1932, but on a rate base obtained by averaging original cost and reproduction cost, putting land in present value, the minimum estimated return in St. Louis would be 6.73 per cent in 1932.

The city will contend that averaging the relatively low returns of the next three years with the high returns of the last two will give a figure of 8 per cent or higher for the five-year period. The Public Service Commission usually allows a return of between 7 and 8 per cent as reasonable, but has never approved a rate higher than 8 per cent.

Four Ways of Calculating.

The estimate by Ross showed the following rates of return in St. Louis, using four different methods of calculating value for rate base:

Original cost—1929, 11.42 per cent; 1930, 11.68 per cent; 1931, 8.17 per cent; 1932, 6.82 per cent; 1933, 7.12 per cent.

Production cost—1929, 8.74 per cent; 1930, 9.09 per cent; 1931, 8.84 per cent; 1932, 5.96 per cent; 1933, 6.31 per cent.

Cost of reproduction less depreciation—1929, 10.11 per cent; 1930, 10.72 per cent; 1931, 7.87 per cent; 1932, 6.77 per cent; 1933, 7.22 per cent.

Average of original cost and reproduction cost less depreciation—1929, 10.41 per cent; 1930, 11 per cent; 1931, 7.81 per cent; 1932, 6.73 per cent; 1933, 7.11 per cent.

The proceeding before the Public Service Commission is a result of a petition filed by the City of St. Louis more than two years ago, asking for an audit of the company's property and earnings, to determine whether rates should be reduced for residence consumers. Upon completion of the audit a few months ago, the city asked for a rate reduction which it was estimated would amount to $1,000,000 a year.

The company is disputing the valuation placed on its property in the audit, contending that the commission valuation of 1915, used as a starting point in the audit, did not take into consideration the reproduction cost of the property at that time.

The hearing will be resumed Monday, when the company is expected to put in additional evidence of the higher values it claims.

ROOSEVELT'S SAGAMORE HILL HOME DAMAGED BY FIRE
Planes Quickly Extinguished and Cake to Volunteers.

By the Associated Press.
OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Jan. 22.—Theodore Roosevelt's Sagamore Hill home was threatened by fire last night. From one of the huge chimneys—one of which he wrote "In them the logs roar and crackle during the long winter evenings"—sparks ignited the roof and started a small blaze. Mrs. Roosevelt was notified by an employee and telephoned an alarm.

Eight volunteer fire trucks put up the long hill overlooking Long Island Sound and extinguished the flames with chemical in a few minutes. The damage was estimated at $1000. Mrs.

H. Callahan of Louisville Praises Dry Law at Anti-Saloon League Dinner.

Patrick Henry Callahan of Louisville, Ky., Colonel by courtesy, paint manufacturer by profession, and prohibitionist by preference, described to an audience of several hundred last night at a citizens' dinner at the City Club sponsored by the Anti-Saloon League "two noble experiments in government undertaken on the American continent."

Col. Callahan, who is general secretary of the Association of Catholics Favoring Prohibition, said the first experiment, democracy, had the same road to travel before achieving popularity that the second, prohibition, is now pursuing.

Both, he said, found an obstacle in the partisan press. He mentioned articles in foreign newspapers in 1925 which reported that democracy in the United States had resulted in dishonesty in government and corrupt elections, a condition which was said to be particularly true in New York, Philadelphia and Boston. "Three cities," said Col. Callahan, "which seem to have the same delinquency in dealing with this later experiment."

Metropolitan newspapers, he said, had never been sympathetic toward the prohibition movement "largely because they think the urban population is against it." The amount of misinformation about prohibition published in metropolitan newspapers, he said, was startling.

Wickersham Report Satisfactory.
He expressed satisfaction with the Wickersham report and said dry organizations were able to lay facts before the commission which turned the minds of 10 of the 11 members. "Only one Judge Kenyon, was an advocate of dry when the commission was appointed," he said. "The commission was made up of the type of men who cannot be influenced by misleading propaganda.

"At the time of the great fire in the Ohio penitentiary the Chicago Tribune blamed prohibition, which, it said, had overcrowded our prisons. There were 1800 unfortunate there, and only 18 of them for violation of the liquor laws. Yet the Chicago Tribune is a great newspaper, and is read by far more than will hear my voice. In all of our prisons there are less than 5 per cent confined for violating the prohibition laws. But newspapers would have you believe prisons are bulging with prohibition law violators."

"When I appeared before a congressional committee last spring I was able to state that during prohibition more lives had been saved by the decline in deaths from alcoholism, cirrhosis of the liver and Bright's disease than were lost in the Great War. I was able to cite census figures to prove this. Yet, Arthur Brisbane, in his column, says that deaths from alcoholism have increased 600 per cent.

Prohibition and Prosperity.
"What happened in 1929? Cirrhosis of the liver and alcoholism deaths were almost wiped out. Was it through treatment in the atmosphere, or in the water? No, liquor was taken away, yet how few know that that was responsible. I gave the story to the newspapers in a few printed it and the rest forgot about it."

Prohibition, he estimated, had released $2,500,000,000 annually into the channels of trade which would otherwise have been spent for liquor. "With this new purchasing power we made things and bought things that we had never dreamed of before," he declared. "It brought us an era of prosperity beyond anything we had ever experienced."

Col. Callahan had read in Louisville papers the statement of Samuel W. Fordyce, St. Louis attorney, who said that he openly disregarded the prohibition laws. "He is doing more harm," Col. Callahan said, "than all these Communists in Russia would do if they were brought over here."

WILL DIRECTS SON TO CAST FATHER'S ASHES INTO CREEK

T. F. Burke, 75, Also Left Request That Body Be Cremated Without Religious Ceremony.

Cremation of his body without religious ceremony is directed in the will of Thomas F. Burke, 75 years old, 3963 Forest Park boulevard, which was filed for probate yesterday. The will directs also that the ashes be scattered by Samuel J. Burke, a son, over Fee-Fee Creek from the bridge spanning Clayton road. "From there," the will continues, "my ashes may perchance float on to the sea through those grounds my son and I enjoyed hunting over together."

The will leaves to Thomas Burke, another son, and Kathleen Burke, a daughter, $1 each and the rest of the estate to Samuel Burke, but if he fails to carry out the provision with respect to disposition of testator's body he shall forfeit his interest in the estate and it shall be turned over to the Salvation Army. The value of the property is not given.

Mr. Burke, who was in the insurance business, died Sunday. His son Samuel said they frequently went hunting, the Clayton bridge mentioned usually being their starting point. The scattering of the ashes as directed will be done as soon as possible, the son said.

ATTACKS COMPANY SUPPLYING PAPER FOR U. S. CURRENCY

Constituent Tells Kansas House of Chicago Gangster's Threats to Bootleggers.

It was at Sagamore Hill that the former President spent the happiest hours of his life, there raising his family, conferring with the leaders of his time.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 22.—Representative Donald Muir of Harper County told the Kansas House of Representatives yesterday that "Scarface Al" Capone had entered the liquor business in Wichita. Muir said the Chicago gangster had "bought his liquor or got out of business."

The assertion was made during debate on Muir's bill to restore capital punishment for first degree murder, kidnapping and robbery with firearms. The House recommended the measure for passage, subject to a final roll call.

Patrick Henry Callahan of Louisville, Ky., Colonel by courtesy, paint manufacturer by profession, and prohibitionist by preference, described to an audience of several hundred last night at a citizens' dinner at the City Club sponsored by the Anti-Saloon League "two noble experiments in government undertaken on the American continent."

Col. Callahan, who is general secretary of the Association of Catholics Favoring Prohibition, said the first experiment, democracy, had the same road to travel before achieving popularity that the second, prohibition, is now pursuing.

Both, he said, found an obstacle in the partisan press. He mentioned articles in foreign newspapers in 1925 which reported that democracy in the United States had resulted in dishonesty in government and corrupt elections, a condition which was said to be particularly true in New York, Philadelphia and Boston. "Three cities," said Col. Callahan, "which seem to have the same delinquency in dealing with this later experiment."

Metropolitan newspapers, he said, had never been sympathetic toward the prohibition movement "largely because they think the urban population is against it." The amount of misinformation about prohibition published in metropolitan newspapers, he said, was startling.

Wickersham Report Satisfactory.

He expressed satisfaction with the Wickersham report and said dry organizations were able to lay facts before the commission which turned the minds of 10 of the 11 members. "Only one Judge Kenyon, was an advocate of dry when the commission was appointed," he said.

"At the time of the great fire in the Ohio penitentiary the Chicago Tribune blamed prohibition, which, it said, had overcrowded our prisons. There were 1800 unfortunate there, and only 18 of them for violation of the liquor laws. Yet the Chicago Tribune is a great newspaper, and is read by far more than will hear my voice. In all of our prisons there are less than 5 per cent confined for violating the prohibition laws. But newspapers would have you believe prisons are bulging with prohibition law violators."

"When I appeared before a congressional committee last spring I was able to state that during prohibition more lives had been saved by the decline in deaths from alcoholism, cirrhosis of the liver and Bright's disease than were lost in the Great War. I was able to cite census figures to prove this. Yet, Arthur Brisbane, in his column, says that deaths from alcoholism have increased 600 per cent.

Prohibition and Prosperity.

MATRIMONIAL SWINDLER

GETS LIFE IMPRISONMENT
New Yorker, Who Duped Women and Took Their Money, Sentenced as Fourth Offender.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Isidor Goldberg, convicted of swindling women through matrimonial advertisements, was sentenced yesterday by Judge George Gallup in Bronx County court to life imprisonment as a fourth offender. Goldberg, 45 years old, lived in Hackensack, N. J.

Posing as a wealthy builder, Goldberg met Mrs. Jennie Weinstein last July through an advertisement and took her in a hired automobile with a liveried chauffeur. He paid $1,000 for a fine residence as their "future home." Later, on the ploy that he needed more money to complete the house, Goldberg borrowed $8500 from her on two mortgages which proved to be forgeries.

The police said Goldberg married a woman last June and disappeared the following day with $1000 he had borrowed from her. Following his arrest, it was found he had another wife, but the bigamy charge was dropped when it was found his first wife had another husband living in Rumania. Goldberg had served three previous terms for grand larceny and felonious assault.

NEW POLICY OF POWER BOARD

To Ease Upon Accountants' Reports
By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—After the procedure followed by its predecessor, the new Power Commission intends to pass upon reports of its field accountants before they are submitted to companies seeking hydro-electric licenses. Chairman Smith today said he saw no reason why the commission should not exercise power to accept or reject the recommendations of its accountants without awaiting the representations of licensees.

Under the procedure of the former commission, composed of Cab-ports are made on the investment claims of the companies, required under the water-power law, which provides for capture of the plants by the Government at a fair price at the expiration of the license, which usually runs for 50 years.

For the fifth time since 1928, the Walgreen drug store at 500 De Baliviere avenue was robbed. One young man with a revolver held up five employees and a customer at 6 p. m., ordered them into telephone booth and escaped with $230 from the register. Two of the employees were women.

Reginald Woods, People's motor truck conductor, was robbed of $6 by two passengers who left his bus at McNeil avenue and Russell boulevard.

Martin Albach, 1923 Menard street, an insurance agent, was robbed of $90 and his automobile by a man at Channing avenue and Washington boulevards.

Other holdups: Arco restaurant, 517 Market street, $29; confectionery, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kuhlmann, 2007 Kosciusko street, $8; grocery, Jacob Goldberg, 2230 Hickory street, $50; filling station, Kingsland avenue and Olive street road, $15.

Burglars in the home of Mrs. Emily Mesloh, 4998 Berthold avenue, stole jewelry valued at $1100 and a quantity of old coins.

Mrs. Martha Eswin, 2927 Maffitt avenue, was robbed of $6 and Miss Evelyn Vernon, 3913 Page boulevard, $4 by purse snatchers.

John W. Coniglio, 42, a four-term ex-convict, arrested last night for investigation, confessed that he and a Negro looted the home of Mrs. Agnes Harrington, 5447 Vernon avenue; earlier in the evening, and promised to lead police to another house where he stole three watches found in his possession. A native of Canada, he has served two terms in England, one in San Quentin and one in Leavenworth. He recently came here from Chicago.

Barney Price, a taxicab driver, was robbed of his cab and $4.50 early today by two men, one of them armed, who hired the cab at Broadway and Locust street and held him up at Twelfth and Sidney streets. The cab was found abandoned later at the foot of Zepp street.

TEACHERS SEEKING PROMOTION

VICTIMS OF EXTORTIONISTS

Brooklyn School Board Gives Report of Investigators to District Attorney.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—A 700-page report, charging that extortionists have obtained large amounts of money from public school teachers seeking promotion and from candidates for teachers' licensure, was presented yesterday to District Attorney Georhan of Brooklyn by the Board of Education.

The report was the result of an investigation made for the board by a private detective agency. It was announced that if the evidence warrants the grand jury will be asked to return indictments, probably early next week.

The charges, supported by affidavits and canceled checks, indicated that Brooklyn teachers paid $200 to $600 in return for the promise of the extortionists that their names would be placed on eligible lists.

HOOVER, SMITH AND COOLIDGE JOIN IN PLEA

Speak on Radio Program in Behalf of $10,000,000
Drought Fund.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—A Red Cross plea for $10,000,000 to aid drought sufferers in 21 states, led by President Hoover, was carried in a coast-to-coast radio broadcast last night.

On a program picked up from four widely separated cities, former President Calvin Coolidge and Alfred E. Smith, Democratic candidate for the presidency in 1928, supplemented Mr. Hoover in urging that "in the face of calamity let us unite in a common effort to drive suffering and want from our country."

John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross, Mrs. August Belmont, Mary Pickford and Will Rogers emphasized the need for speedy relief.

"Leader Days" in any one section of the country should be the concern of us all, Smith said.

"A Call for Protection."

President Hoover and Payne spoke from Washington. Coolidge from his home at Northampton, Mass., Smith, Mrs. Belmont and Miss Pickford from New York and Will Rogers from Little Rock, Ark., a stop-over point on his airplane tour of the South in quest of funds.
The addresses were transmitted by the National Broadcasting Co. over two networks.

The President said: "It is unthinkable that any of our people should be allowed to suffer from hunger or want. The heart of the nation will not permit it. It is to the heart of the nation that I am appealing tonight. I urge all of my countrymen to contribute promptly and in accordance with their means. It is a call to citizenship and to generosity in time of trial, but it is a call for protection to our greatest institution of charity and about all on behalf of those in need."

Coolidge said: "This is not a time when excuses can take the place of money. Everyone knows trade is depressed, losses have been met and some incomes have been reduced. We all have the demands of local charity. But the suffering for which this appeal is made is such that it comes down to a bare proposal in the name of humanity that those who have something shall share it with those who have nothing. Those who have must give and give without delay."

Smith said: "The Red Cross can drive the wolf of hunger from the door but the American people must stand behind the Red Cross. They must provide the means and the Red Cross will provide the ways.
Suffering humanity cries out to the Red Cross. The Red Cross in turn is looking to you. Do not disappoint the thousands of suffering families who look to you for help through the Red Cross."

Four orchestras under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkret, Amos
'n' Andy, the radio entertainers, and Miss Frieda Hempel, singer, participated in the program.

The order appointing the receivers expressly provides for the continuance of the business.

The answer to the bill of complaint, the company states that while it is solvent, its current operations have become strained owing to the heavy interest and other charges made in the immediate future, and to the difficulty of borrowing money at this time.

The company now employs about 2900 workers, operating shifts of three, four and five days a week. The petition states that total assets are $41,581,821, and liabilities $37,815,638.

The Winchester Repeating Arms Co., under that name, dates from 1865, when Oliver F. Winchester, former Lieutenant-Governor of the State, invested extensive capital to merge a number of smaller concerns for the production of the repeating rifle, invented by a foreman in a Connecticut arms factory two years previously. The repeating rifle had been supplied in small numbers to the Union troops late in the Civil War.

Conferees were begun with the presidents of the chamber and Senate and parliamentary committees for a Premier-designate to succeed Theodore Steeg, whose ministry fell in the chamber last night after a life of 43 days. His was the eighty-fifth government of the third Republic.

Pierre Etienne Flandin, Minister of Commerce in the Cabinet of Andre Tardieu and leader of the Right wing in the Senate, was mentioned as possible designates.

Whoever leads the next Government, the portfolio of Mr. Briand, Foreign Minister, is regarded as assured.

STEEG MINISTRY LASTED 40 DAYS

By Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—Plans by the French Cabinet to stabilize the price of wheat in this country at about $1.85 a bushel when the same commodity is selling in Chicago at about 80 cents and in Canada at 60, brought about the downfall of the Government formed a month and nine days ago by Premier Theodore Steeg.

Steeg's resignation followed his defeat when the Chamber of Deputies, by 293 to 283, adopted a resolution denouncing "speculative manipulation" by "especially harmful farmers and consumers resulting from advances publicity" on the Government's price-fixing plans. This resolution was introduced by Louis Bayat, Deputy for the department of Isere.

The policies against which it was directed were those of Victor Boret, Minister of Agriculture. When the attack on him was opened in the Chamber of Deputies, Boret offered to resign if he could save the Government embarrassment by doing so. But Premier Steeg decided that the entire ministry should stand or fall with the Minister of Agriculture.

Pierre Etienne Flandin, former Minister of Commerce in the Cabinet of Andre Tardieu, was the leader of the parliamentary assault that brought down the Steeg Ministry.

Boret had announced his intention of introducing certain measures designed to raise the price of wheat to 175 francs ($4.82), a quintal, the equivalent of $1.85 a bushel. Wheat at the time was quoted here at 155 francs a quintal ($4.42).

Leon Mayer, Radical-Socialist Under-Secretary of State, always an opponent of anything making for dear living, refused to be a party to the plan.

Moreover, and this led to opposition talk about "the wheat scandal"—it was said that Boret's plans were disclosed in such a way that speculators profited. Huge stocks of the grain were bought and sold as the price advanced.

Gifford Pinchot announced to-day that all persons who apply for appointment hereafter must sign a pledge to "defend and obey the Constitution of the United States and to loyally support the policies approved by the people of this Commonwealth in the election of 1928."

The Governor said the appointments, now effective or in the course of being made effective through issuance of commissions, would not be affected by his decision to have all future appointees signed.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—For the seventh time in the life of the present Parliament President Doumergue today cast about for a new Prime Minister.

TRYING TO RAISE $37,000 FOR PYTHIAN BUILDING DEBT

Members of Ogier Would Prevent Foreclosure Proceedings on Structure at Grand and Delmar. The order of the Knights of Pythias is seeking to raise funds to pay off a past-due indebtedness of about $37,000 on the seven-story Pythian Building at the northwest corner of Grand and Delmar boulevards, according to Stephen C. Rogers, attorney for the Knights of Pythias Building Co. to preclude foreclosure proceedings. Inability to meet interest payments and amortizations, Rogers said, resulted from unexpectedly low rental receipts during the business depression. Should the property be sold un-

COUNTY LIBEL HEARING ALMOST ENDS IN FIGHT
Castlen Takes Off Glasses, Starts for Attorney in Jacobsmeier Suit.

Prosecuting Attorney Castlen and Circuit Clerk Oscar Jacobsmeier of St. Louis County testified yesterday in depositions taken at the instance of the St. Louis County Taxpayers' League, which, with certain of its officers, is in a $100,000 libel suit brought by Jacobsmeier. In opposing Jacobsmeier's candidacy for nomination in the primary election last August, in which accused him of violating the antinepotism statute.

The examination of Castlen ended with a heated exchange, after Josephus M. Todd, defendant and attorney for the League, sought to question him about salaries of county officials specified by law.

The recent census placed the county in a new population classification, which may result in smaller salaries for some officials.

Removing his glasses, Castlen left the witness chair and advanced on Todd, charging him with ignoring the rules of evidence. Todd protested his right to continue that line of questioning. Others intervened and the hearing was adjourned until Feb. 10.

TIME OF ATTENDING MEETING.

Castlen had told of attending meetings before the primary election at the homes of officers of the Taxpayers' League, at which he was urged to institute antinepotism proceedings against Jacobsmeier. Sheriff Lill, County Treasurer Deuser and Highway Engineer Jablonsky. Formerly Lill and Deuser employed their daughters, and Jablonsky a cousin. Jacobsmeier's father is a clerk for the Jury Commission Board, which is composed of the Circuit Clerk and the four Circuit Judges. He was appointed by the County Court.

Castlen testified George W.

Carroll, attorney for the league, at the meetings urged him to take action against those they said were violating the anti-nepotism law. He refused, he said, to make political capital of the issue for himself before the primary, but promised to look into the matter after that.

He was endorsed by the league for renomination, but the endorsement was withdrawn for the general election in November after Castlen had declined to file an ouster suit against Jacobsmeier.

The Attorney-General's office had advised him, he said, that the matter was not in his jurisdiction.

COMMUNITY FUND

OFFICERS ELECTED

Sidney Maestre, Campaign
Chairman, Chosen President;
R. W. Kelso Talks of Policy.

Sidney Maestre, president of the Mercantile-Commerco Co., was chairman of the recent Community Fund campaign to raise $2,200,000 for the needs of 51 participating agencies during 1931, was elected president of the Community Fund at its annual meeting yesterday.
He succeeds Ethan A. H. Shepley.

It was announced that the total raised so far for 1931 is $2,200,311.
The campaign ended officially Nov.
24. Robert W. Kelso was re-elected director and Daniel K. Catlin, first vice president. Robert C.
Day was named second vice president and James L. Ford Jr., treasurer. Fifty-one trustees were also elected.

In his annual report Kelso named six major accomplishments of the Community Fund during 1930 as follows: Adoption of policies to principles of eligibility for agencies membership; codification of principles upon which the Budget Committee should function; abrogation of agreements with member agencies outside the constitution and by-laws and adjustment of controversies arising out of old agreements with the Pure Milk Commission, Y. M. C.
A. and Boy Scouts; a reduction of the fund deficit by $80,000; attainment of the campaign goal; progress in establishing the Community Council as a fact-finding body in matters of social welfare service.

Kelso said that the policy of discharging the deficit in three annual payments would dispose of it by the next annual meeting provided next autumn's campaign is successful.

He pointed out that in passing its goal, the last campaign produced contributions exceeding those in the 1929 campaign by $137,539.
He attributed this accomplishment to greater stabilization of organization and publicity.

For the first time, he said, it has been possible for the Executive Committee to make available sufficient funds for the initial requirements of agencies as approved by the Budget Committee. The final report of the Budget Committee, disposing of $1,890,000 and containing numerous special recommendations, has been adopted in full, he said.

Reports of the trustees and Budget Committee showed that the League for the Hard of Hearing has been denied admittance to the fund because of lack of money;
that appeals by the St. Louis Red Cross and the Y. M. C. A. from fund appropriations have been denied; that permission sought by the Children's Hospital and Occupation Therapy Workshop to use savings resulting from unexpected income or change in function have been denied; that the Maternity Hospital, Girl Scouts, and Salvation Army have been authorized to conduct separate campaigns for limited amounts.

In connection with the policy on savings by agencies, a resolution has been adopted permitting an agency to use special gifts without reducing its Community Fund budget provided they are used in a manner consistent with the agency's development.

A. F. L. ADVOCATES SPEEDING OF ALL GOVERNMENT PROJECTS

Executive Council, However, Thinks Private Initiative Should Supplement Such Activity.

By the Associated Press
MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 23.—William
Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said yesterday it was the opinion of the Executive Council that all Government projects and activities should be carried forward immediately.

He also said the council was of the opinion that in order to be successful the expenditure of large amounts of Government funds must be supplemented by individual initiative in private industry and private undertakings.

The council, Green said in outlining discussion at the meeting, expressed a hope that the necessary for holding a special session of Congress might be obtained. "We cannot let the owners and managers of industry and many public-spirited people firmly believe that a legislative rest is essential to the development of industrial activity and in the interest of millions of unemployed working people."

"People everywhere," he said,
"should be encouraged to buy as freely as possible, the shorter work week should be established in Government and private industry, and the hours of labor reduced corresponding with the needs of the occasion and wages must be maintained."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The House today passed the Justice Department annual supply bill, allowing for an outlay of $51,239,000 for the next fiscal year, including $11,425,500 for the prohibition budget and the State Department supply bill carrying $16,681,000.

The House defeated an amendment to prohibit the employment of persons convicted of felonies. Proposed by Representative La Guardia (Rep.), New York, the amendment would have prevented the use of funds to be paid as expenses and salaries of such persons. It was lost by a viva voce vote after Representative Gifford (Rep.), Massachusetts, and Oliver (Dem.), Alabama, insisted that the employment of such men led to the prosecution of criminals.

In opposing the amendment, Gifford said his State had issued what is known as a mandate to change the prohibition law, and he should carry out the mandate despite his personal feelings.

However, he charged, the wet forces every year had attempted to cripple enforcement of the prohibition law by seeking to place limitations upon appropriations.

He declared that so long as the law was on the books, the enforcement authorities should have every facility at hand with which to enforce it.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The House of Representatives yesterday voted for a continuance of wire-tapping, spying, operation of Government speakeasies and other practices condemned by the Wickersham commission as having caused public opinion against the national prohibition laws. Sitting in the committee of the whole, the House drys not only put that body on record in favor of those practices, but voted Government funds with which to carry them out.

Tumultuous debate attended the voting, but the wetts, assisted by a determined drys, who voted against the methods named, were defeated all along the line, with one exception.

By making a point of order, they succeeded in striking out a proposed appropriation of $6,000 for propaganda, or "educational" purposes. If a vote had been taken on this proposal there is no doubt it would have been rejected.

Both sides quoted freely from the Wickersham report, although the wetts seemed to find more ammunition in it than the drys. Indeed, one of the dry leaders, Representative Tom Banton (Dem.) of Texas, became so exasperated by the frequent quotations that he declared that the report was "bunk" and that the commission had "wasted $60,000 of public money."

Wicks Denounces Wire-Tapping. The latest vote, numbered by the wetts on an proposal in favor of an amendment proposed by Representative Tinkham (Rep.), Massachusetts, providing that none of the sum appropriated for prohibition enforcement could be expended in tapping telephone or telegraph wires.

Speaking in support of his amendment, Tinkham, black-whited nemesis of Bishop Cannon, told the House that wire-tapping is unlawful in 28 states and that the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice expressly forbids its agents to resort to it.

He reminded his colleagues that such a pronounced dry as Judge Julian S. Kenyon had stated in his part of the Wickersham report that such practices had done much to inflame public sentiment against the law.

Representative Beck (Rep.), Pennsylvania, quoted from a dissenting opinion in which Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the Supreme Court denounced wire-tapping as "dirty business" and expressed the belief that it was better for some criminals to escape than for the Government to play the ignoble part.

In the majority of opinion rendered in the same case, Beck said, the late Chief Justice Tait virtually invited Congress to forbid wire-tapping by law.

Senator Ralph Wammack of Bloomfield, to change the Constitu-tutional side for centralization of responsibility for the conduct of the State Government and for a constitutional provision for an adequate budget system, was reawakened yesterday when he re-introduced in the Senate his joint and concurrent resolution for the submission of an amendment to the Constitution.Under the Wammack amendment, the only officers of the State who would be elected by popular vote would be the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor. All others would be appointed by the Governor, except the State Auditor, who would be elected by the Legislature in joint session.In the 1929 Legislature the resolution was adopted by the Senate, but was defeated in the House.
Under the Constitution it was necessary to introduce it before it could be considered by the Legislature this year.

Education Board Proposed.

It is proposed that the executive departments of the State shall be administered as under the existing law. In addition to the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, the officials are Auditor, Treasurer, Attorney-General and Secretary of State. The State Superintendent of Schools would be replaced by a State Board of Education of six members to be appointed by the Governor.Virtually the only change in the qualification of the officers proposed in the Wammack amendment is to strike out the word male.No changes are made in the presented amendment, it being stipulated that salaries shall be fixed by the Legislature.

I know that my audience will make no difference in its original orientation; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory power.

JOSEPH PULITZER,

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Judge Wham and the Jury.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I have no interest in your personal habits. However, you are an officer of the court, and in such you will be obliged to deal with a large number of liquor cases. Under such circumstances, it would be exceedingly bad taste for you to drink intoxicating liquor while serving as jurors.

THUS, according to the press, Federal Judge Wham of East St. Louis lectured a panel of jurors. I agree that much of this confiscated evidence will be of very bad flavor, and that jurors should refrain from tasting such unpalatable evidence. And of course a juror can hardly act unbiased in a bootlegging case if he has a taste for it.

Nevertheless, it is tragically ridiculous that after 11 years of grape juice sumptuary fanaticism, Federal Judges have to caution their juries to refrain from violation of a Federal law while they decide the guilt or innocence of alleged offenders!

Does prohibition prohibit? If so, it seems it should at least function on Federal juries long enough for them to hear the cases of citizens alleged to have violated that law.

In the face of such a disgraceful, hypocritical mess, why get so excited at the remarks of Mr. Ford, who elected to tell the truth rather than parade himself in the robes of fake holiness?

MARTIN A. DILLIMON,
Educational Director, Missouri State Federation of Labor.

Poland's Debt to Germany.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAVE carefully read the letter of Henry Tuholske on Poland and Germany. Let me repeat that the anti-Semites that Poland gave her independence and freedom to Field Marshal Hindenburg and the German army which defeated the Russians during the World War; otherwise Poland would still be an integral part of Russia today, as the Allies could never have separated Poland from Russia and made it an independent state in Europe. In other words, it was impossible for the Allies to antagonize their Russian ally by taking the Russian-Polish territory away from the Russian Government, as they had no ground upon which to do so. Poland should be grateful to Germany.

A. THOMAS.

Communists and the City.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WISH to voice my approval over the noble manner in which the city was saved from the clutches of the Communists by the brave police force. The rabble was quickly dispersed and the ringleaders received a stiff fine from Judge Blaine, a noble patriot, who called upon all red-blooded American citizens to stamp out this Communism, which is undoubtedly threatening American "prosperity."

Perhaps we could get some of those brave men from Maryville, Mo., to help us. The motto of Maryville is, "Don't jail 'em, burn 'em," and would no doubt cause many a young Communist to think twice before he criticized the administration.

The Aldermen should suggest an appropriation to send themselves, Mayor Miller and various other city officials to Florida for the winter, that they might be spared such painful scenes and be safe from Communists.

O. D.

Another Dredging Opponent.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I AM another who opposes dredging the Meramec River among those who have bought and built summer homes and cottages along that stream, the only place St. Louisans have to enjoy summer canoeing and bathing. Why allow a private company to come along and take the gravel and deprive us of this recreation place? Why would we have done last summer without it, considering the heat?

JOHN W. PIERCE.

Depression and the Machine.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I N a letter to the Post-Dispatch regarding the use of machinery, Raymond Lake writes, "Except in an indirect sense, it (the machine) isn't related to our present economic difficulties whatsoever."

I disagree with that statement. While I do not claim that the machine is the sole reason for the present depression, I do believe it is the greatest contributing factor. During the past decade newspapers, magazines and trade journals have told us the story. We read of factories reducing their working force one-third or one-half by the installation of mass production methods. We read of the invention of machines whereby two or three men could do the work formerly done by 10, 20 or perhaps 200 men.

I agree with reservation to Mr. Lake's statement that the highly perfected machines of today are a blessing to humanity. They could be made a blessing if working hours per day or week were adjusted to a point where there will be a job for every man who wants to work. Until this is done, the machine will be a curse rather than a blessing to the working man.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

The old age pension bill which is now before the Missouri Legislature is but a part of a world-wide movement to provide security for the aged. Only China, India and the United States, among the large countries of the world, have failed to establish old age pension systems. The United States is the only great industrial nation which lacks such a program.

Beginning with Germany in 1889, 41 other countries have set up systems of old age relief. In Japan the Government sells annuities at cost to those citizens who wish to buy them. In Great Britain, Germany, France, Italy, Sweden, Spain and in 20 other countries in Europe and in South America, workers, employers and the state are compelled to contribute to a fund from which insurance benefits are paid to the aged. In 12 countries public pension payments are made to all needy persons who have reached the age of 60 or 65 or 70. This is the case in Norway, in Denmark and in the British dominions. Under the Canadian system the dominion assists the provinces in making payments of as much as $240 per annum to needy persons over 70 years of age who have resided in the dominion for more than 20 years.

In addition to its insurance plan, which applies to workers who have passed the age of 65, Great Britain makes outright pension payments to all necessary persons who are over 70. This old age pension act, says Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, "is the most popular piece of legislation ever passed in this country. There is not a vestige of opposition to it, and nobody would ever dream of suggesting its repeal. The question of old age pensions is a non-party issue in Great Britain. It is heartily supported by all parties."

The movement is now spreading among the American states, following the lead of the Territory of Alaska, which adopted the first American old age pension law in 1915. Fifteen state legislatures have passed such measures. In one State, Washington, the bill was vetoed by the Governor. In two, Pennsylvania and Arizona, it was found unconstitutional by the state courts. But in 12 states the old age pension law is on the books. In six of these its adoption came within the past two years; in California, Minnesota, Utah and Wyoming in 1929, in New York and Massachusetts in 1930.

These state pension laws lay down certain requirements as to age, residence and economic condition as a basis of eligibility. Eight states make pension payments after the age of 70, four after the age of 65. Eight states require 15 years' prior residence. Three ask only 10. One requires 20. All require some proof of need. Six states will pension only those who own property worth less than $3000. Kentucky pays no pension to persons who have assets worth $2500 or incomes of $400 per year. Wyoming will make no payments to those with incomes of $300. Montana and Utah to those with incomes of $300. In only two states is the amount which may be granted in relief not specified by law. The most usual provision, found in six states, is for the payment of $1 per day. Wyoming limits payments to $30 per month. Montana and Utah to $25, and Kentucky to $250 per year.

In many of the states the laws make the adoption of the program optional with the counties. The systems established in California, Massachusetts and New York, however, place definite responsibility on the state. The usual arrangement is for a division of the cost between state and county. In New York and California the state bears a half, in Massachusetts and Wisconsin a third.

Modern industrialism has aggravated the problem of old age dependency. Through medical science it has lengthened the span of human life. Through the introduction of new machines and new techniques it has shortened the years of man's working life. By calling millions from country to city it has divorced old age from the protection of the soil. Yearly thousands of honest, hard-working people find themselves without resources to provide for the declining years of their lives, through no fault of their own. The pension system will maintain them without the stigma and the loss of self-respect which attaches to the paupers, and at a much lower cost. It is commanded both by considerations of humanity and of economy. Into the dread uncertainty with which modern life confronts the common man, it will introduce some small measure of security.

STATE LAWS AND LYNCHINGS.

In view of the marked increase in the number of lynchings in the past year and with the recent memory of the Maryville outrage, it is heartening to know that the University of North Carolina Law School is making a survey of all state laws on the subject of lynching and mob violence, with a view to drawing up an improved statute covering this crime for presentation to the various states if the survey seems to justify such a step. This is an outgrowth of the activity of the Southern commission on the study of lynching, of which George Ford Milton, editor of the Chattanooga News, is chairman. The work of the commission is deserving of all praise, even though its labors have apparently had a negative effect in recent months. It is obvious that economic and other factors have been responsible for the increase in mob violence. And it is equally obvious that some more drastic method of legal procedure is necessary if such wanton crimes are to be checked in times of stress such as the present.

TOO MANY PANTS.

Prosperity prophets of the round-the-corner school are somewhat worried over the failure of good times to return, and perhaps a clew lies in a pithy apothegm Bruce Barton attributes to an Eastern financier. A business depression can last only as long as a two-pants suit, this financier says. As soon as steady wear wrecks the second pair of trousers in suits bought before the boom ended, the tide will turn. The pale citizenry will perch on tailors and clothiers to buy new suits. These lucky entrepreneurs will be obliged to hire more assistants, and will have money to invest in bonds and real estate. When clothing and yard goods supplies run short, they will telegraph for replacements, starting the factory wheels turning again. Sheep growers will whistle merrily as they resume shearing, and will buy farms and automobiles. Motor manufacturers will add to their payrolls, and soon car loadings, bank clearings and building permits will begin to mount. The shrill blast of the factory whistle and the hum of the tractor will be heard again, the soap line and the apple seller will be no more and the land will reveal in a new prosperity.

We might have had all these glad tidings six months ago were it not for the go-getters in the clothing industry, for it is they who put over the two-pants idea. Were this still a one-pants nation, millions of suits would have been ready for the old clothes man long before now, and piping times would have been with us once more. Since nearly every suit of clothes now carries a spare, the agony is prolonged. The nation can only be brave and patient while it waits hopefully for all those extra pants to wear out.

GERMANY AND POLAND.

We do not envy the League of Nations Council its task of settling the quarrel between Germany and Poland over the ill treatment of German minorities in Upper Silesia. A proper settlement could be made only by revising the treaty of Versailles, but even Germany, fearing the political consequences, is not asking for that to be done.

Like so many of Europe's troubles, the Poland-German imbroglio was hatched at that famous table around which sat Wilson, Clemenceau and Lloyd George. Clemenceau, violently pro-Polish, persuaded Wilson to give Poland lands which were preponderantly German in population. Danzig was made a free city under Polish protection, and its citizens, who are 97 per cent German, were refused the right of self-determination. Parts of Posen and Pomerania, comprising the Danzig Corridor, were given to Poland, though the only two districts in those provinces permitted to vote on the question favored retention by Germany by majorities of 97.5 and 92.8 per cent. In the case of Upper Silesia, a plebiscite was agreed to. Despite the setting up by Poland of a reign of terror before the election, German sentiment carried it 307,393 to 479,365. Poland then resorted to force, capturing the eastern half of the province, including most of its mining and industrial properties, which it now retains.

Julius Curtius, German Foreign Minister, told the League of Nations Council that the German population of Upper Silesia has been subjected to terrorism, violence and bloodshed. That is the inevitable result of the maladjustments of the Versailles treaty. The situation has its counterpart elsewhere in Europe wherever large racial groups have been artificially detached from their homeland and put under alien rule. Witness the cases of the Croats in Jugo-Slavia and the German minorities in Czechoslovakia.

Poland's attitude throughout the Silesian affair has been to tolerate if not to encourage the Silesian disorders. The country is in the grip of Marshal Pilsudski, one of the most ruthless politicians in Europe. Considering the sentiment aroused during the war for the liberation of a people long enslaved and oppressed, the behavior of Poland now comes as a tragic anticlimax. It is guilty of the same tyranny and disregard for the rights of others that once brought it the sympathy of the world.

ANDORRA PAPERS, PLEASE COPY.

Civilization is breaking over the mountain wall which shuts tiny Andorra from the rest of the world. Soon the simple pastoral life of its 5231 inhabitants will begin to take on the ways of the enlightened West. Before long they will be writing deposit slips, signing checks and balancing stubs. For where the evergreen oak looks out on sunny barrier slopes, a bank is being organized. With this enterprise, so the dispatch said, goes civilization. We would like to make a correction. The mere organization of a bank will not civilize Andorra. It will take more than a show opening, with carnations for the ladies. Wait until the bank has had a chance to function. Wait until the Andorran shepherd boys learn there is a brighter future if bank robbing and theft begin to hold it up regularly. Wait until an upright young assistant cashier, who teaches a Sunday school class, fritters away the contents of the safe at Monte Carlo. Wait until there have been a half dozen runs and the bank fails to open some morning. Yes, civilization is on its way to Andorra, but it hasn't yet arrived.

M. FESS TRANSLATES MR. HOOVER.

Senator Fess of Ohio, who is also chairman of the Republican National Committee, has interpreted Mr. Hoover's message on the Wickersham committee's report to mean that the President has an open mind on the prohibition question, that he is not unalterably opposed to revision, but simply to the form of revision proposed by Mr. Anderson.

True or not, the Fess construction is interesting.

If true, such dry leaders as the Rev. Clarence True Wilson and F. Scott McBride must be somewhat nonplussed; if true, the W. C. T. U. will have to reconsider their laudatory verdict that Mr. Hoover has made himself the outstanding champion of the dry cause to whom such as they have pledged their support down to the last ballot; if true, the editors of the United States and the Washington correspondents will have to confess they do not understand the King's English as spoken by Mr. Hoover; finally, if the Fess translation is correct, the Republican politicians who felt that Mr. Hoover had at last hitched his wagon to the prohibition star will reluctantly acknowledge that their happiness over the prospect of another candidate next year was premature. And the Fess message may itself be thus decided: Mr. Hoover will be as wet or as dry as the exigencies require in the rose-wreathed June of '32.

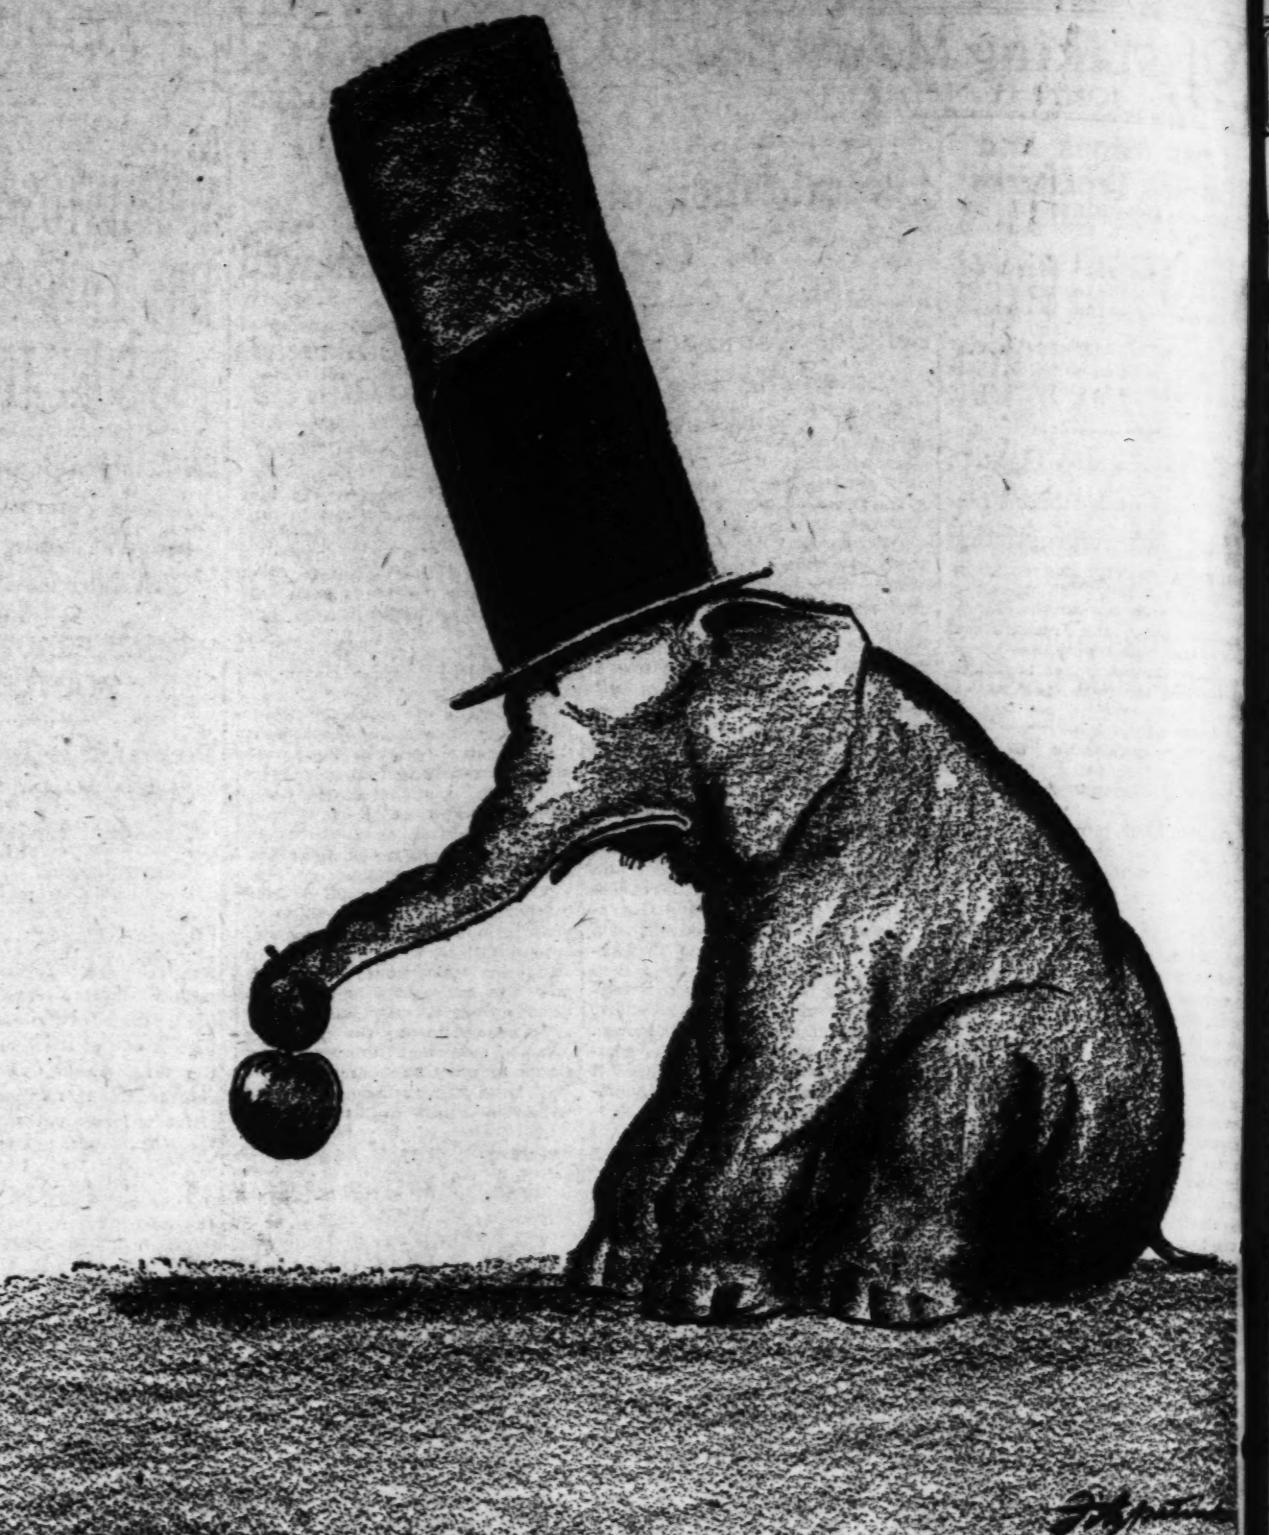

THE POWER TO DESTROY.

For three months of the year the average Englishman does not work for himself or his family, Sir Philip Gibbs has written; he works for the Government. In other words, taxes absorb 25 per cent of the average Englishman's earnings. The Englishman of more than average income, say the man of unusually large wealth, is in sorrier case. The latest entry of this category is Lord Astor, whom the news has just reported as deciding to close his famous Cliveden estate because, as he explained to his tenants, "Out of every hundred pounds sterling I receive I am obliged to pay 60 pounds to the state." If the "closing of the estate" is equivalent to our expression, "shutting up shop," it was a doleful piece of information to the tenants. And since they were called together to hear the announcement, the presumption must be it was a serious procedure. But waiving the exact significance of Lord Astor's action, the decision emphasizes again the truth of the ancient aphorism that "the power to tax is the power to destroy." The destruction, moreover, is not limited to citizens directly taxed. In the present instance the burden has compelled the landlord to curtail his manner of living, but from the tenant it has taken his job.

PLENTY OF LAWS ALREADY.

From the New York Herald Tribune.

THEY HERE are plenty of laws on the statute books today to deal with individuals, alien or American, or with organizations under whatever name that advocate the overthrow of the Government by force, but these are applied, and should be, only on the basis of actual evidence of such advocacy at a particular time and place. No other procedure is compatible with those conceptions of liberty and free speech which lie at the foundation of American institutions. It is entirely conceivable that the application of "Communist" will in a few years be considered as innocuous as "capitalist" and that another word will have come into use to describe the political

Fish Committee's Red Scare

Personal Liberty and Dry Law

From the Detroit News.

REPRESENTATIVE BECK of Pennsylvania—Mr. Chairman, the time will come when this and similar debates in the House of Representatives for funds for prohibition enforcement will be regarded by a future generation with the same sorrow and humiliation as those of us who are descended from the Pilgrim fathers regard the debates that once took place on the subject of witchcraft.

It will be regarded by a future and not a distant generation as extraordinary that the House of Representatives should have sustained invasions of personal liberty such as have been retained in the present bill within the last hour.

Do not intend to discuss the question except in one aspect and to make one comment for what it is worth. I appreciate the futility of discussion. The present is with the drys, the future is with the wet, and it will not be any very distant future, if we can judge from the returns of last November's election.

But I want to say this very solemnly to the House. If it were within my power to visualize to the House the consequences of such legislation, I could change the present minority of the House to a majority and majority to a minority, or else I would not have the high regard for the humanity of each member of the House that I now have.

According to the last report of the Commissioner of Prohibition, there were indicted in this country 68,173 people, of whom 54,985 were convicted, with prison sentences aggregating 14,172 years, under the Volstead law. If I could assemble those 54,000 men, women, and even children, and invite the House to witness them pass in some procession before the Capitol, men and women who have been changed from ordinary criminals—if I could invite this House to witness this procession of misery, and they to march in military formation, it would require at least five hours to pass a given point.

When I listen to my friend from Texas (Mr. Blanton), always zealous and always eloquent, speak about the President of the United States having the Army, the Marines, and every executive force to enforce this law, including the methods of prohibition enforcement officers, then I would like to know how many American criminals are going to make of otherwise self-respecting citizens before you can enforce a statute which, if experience in the last 10 years counts for anything, with all the wealth of the Government, with the Army and the Navy, and the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars, has proved ineffective to change the primary instinct of individual liberty that is in the human breast of the average American.

Edmund Burke, the most philosophical of all students of government, once said that "politics ought to be adjusted not to human reasonings, but to human nature, of which reason is but a poor and by no means the greater part." To the effect that eminent senior Justice of the Supreme Court said that "the life of the law is not in logic, but in experience."

Experience has shown that you can spend all of the money in the Treasury and you will not destroy in the hearts of the American people the instinct of freedom which they have, that in the use of such beverages they have the right to order their own lives and without unreasonable interference of any government. Convict 120,000 a year, and not as in 1928 over $0,000, and you will not terrorize the American people.

Lost Mines and Buried Treasures

CORNADON'S CHILDREN. By J. Frank Dobie. (The Southwest Press Dallas. $3.)

EARLY 400 years have passed since Coronado returned from his famous journey in search of the Seven Cities of Cibola with a sorry tale to tell. But if, as wise men have insisted, there is more in human happiness in pursuit than in capture, then Coronado was a great success as a public benefactor, for as his chronicler, Castaneda, records, although he did not find the riches that he sought, at least he "found a place in which to search for them"; and, according to J. Frank Dobie, the search has been going on with increasing interest ever since. The spread of civilization into the Southwest, far from destroying the treasure legends of that vast region, has only to prove the other propagating medium for them, and we are amazed that even in our cynical and presumably bunk-proof moment, when practically everyone prides himself on being "from Missouri," such legends are on the increase.

This will seem hard to believe—until you have read "Coronado's Children"; and if, in the course of reading it, you do not experience an occasional flash of glorious credulity and perhaps a half-shamed desire to do a bit of digging on your own, then there is something wrong with whatever gland it is in you that should secrete the rejuvenating elixir of wonder.

Frank Dobie, the folk-lore expert of the University of Texas, has spent many years in collecting the strange tales of lost mines and buried treasures that are current in Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona at the present time—as a matter of fact, the activity in this direction began long before he came to think of these tales as tellers or as worthy of collection. He is the son of an old-time Texas cattle man and grew up on the ranges in the border country. Tales of treasure were commonplaces of his boyhood and he himself has done a bit of hopeful digging in his time, as he relates with his unforced characteristic humor. He has met some of the men who have seen these treasures with their own eyes; and if only this or that had not eventuated exactly as it did, some of them, according to their highly circumstantial tales, would now be in position to make Henry Ford look like a piker.

Even so, they still know just about where to dig and sooner or later those three burrow loads of Spanish gold or that Spanish cannon loaded to the muzzle with the precious metal, or that case gleaming with stalactites of pure silver or those little cardboards of gold and silver ingots—or the unthinkable Sun-Sabers—or even those 100 jack-loads of silver bullets will come to light. Just wait and see! For have they not old charts that show just where there should be a certain iron spike in a certain scrub oak tree—or other equally definite markings whereby one can't go wrong? And, mind

It is interesting to note that "Coronado's Children" is a valuable contribution to the literature of American folk-lore. But relatively few readers will care in the least about that. They will be too busy enjoying the romantic spell of the book, curiously tempered with the author's ever active but never obtrusive sense of humor. There must be in this single volume enough material to make a score or more of mystery novels, with sufficient remaining stuff for as many ingenious short stories.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass.

Jan. 23.

OSTLY because of developments in some foreign countries we find considerable discussion of whether democracy is not proving a failure. Very great things have been expected of that form of government. The oratory that has been expended in its glorification has not all been found to be justified. No informed student of human affairs ever expected that democracy would be a sovereign remedy for all the ills with which mortals are beset. But the principle of self-government, applied in as far as the development of a people will admit of its application, remains as the best solution of social relations.

In times of national peril, that whether military or economic, it has been found necessary to modify the application of the principle in the interest of expedition and solidarity. That has been done in some European countries, but it is a temporary expedient. Self-government is the expression of one of the strongest and most logical aspirations of human nature. There is no other system that is consistent with freedom, but never obtrusive sense of humor. The character of our people is the best guarantee of its success in the United States.

PRESBYTERIAN HEAD APPROVES DRY REPORT

Regrets It Offers No Constructive Substitute for Existing Evils.

The Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, Presbyter of the General Assembly, discussing politics, prohibition and skepticism with a reporter before addressing ministers of the St. Louis Presbytery today, said the church should avoid partisan politics, approved the Wickerham report as a whole and expressed the opinion that the youth of the country is turning from skepticism to the gospel.

"While the church should stay out of partisan politics," he said, "it should emphasize social righteousness. It is a function of the church to apply the gospel to all of life, individually, socially and nationally."

Although Dr. Kerr approved the Wickerham report generally, he expressed regret that it offered no constructive substitute for the existing evils of prohibition. "Time," he added, "will be on the side of the Constitution." He said that, while the right to work for modification of the prohibition law should be recognized, it was nevertheless the duty of every citizen to respect a law so long as it is on the statute books.

Dr. Kerr based his opinion that

3000 ASK FOR RELIEF AT CITIZENS' BUREAU

Emergency Aid Is Given to 432 — Others Sent to Organized Charities.

More than 3000 applications for relief were received between Jan. 2 and 19 at the Citizens' Public Relief Bureau, 2022 Washington avenue, it was announced today.

Emergency relief was given in 432 cases of extreme destitution, and the remainder of the applications were referred to organized charities co-operating with the Citizens' Public Relief Committee. More than half the applications for relief were from persons not previously known to charitable organizations, indicating the extent of the distress resulting from unemployment members of the relief committee point out.

Fifty-two permanent and 167 temporary jobs have been filled by the employment division of the bureau since Jan. 12. Previously the committee placed 400 men and women in jobs, the majority temporary.

About 80 of the positions filled recently were in city departments, where work is to be found for 700 persons.

Twelve of the positions in the Health Department, seven men being assigned to clerical duties, and the others were commissioned as quarantine officers. Persons employed by the city under the relief plan are paid $3 a day from the $300,000 fund appropriated for relief purposes.

More than 50,000 garments have been collected by the clothing division of the bureau directed by Mrs. Nat Brown. All clothing is cleaned and repaired before distribution from headquarters at 1312 Pine street. Approximately 175 applications for clothing are received daily. Clothing collected by the Police and Fire Departments and other agencies is turned over to the committee. A total of 49 tons of coal also has been received.

Birch O. Mahaffey, chairman of the Citizens' Committee, renewed an appeal for jobs. "Certainly no job should go begging at this time," Mahaffey said. "Even a few days employment will help some needy family. Every possible precaution is taken in selecting men for jobs, one requirement being that the applicants are recognized residents of St. Louis. Any person having work to offer should telephone the bureau, CEntral 0491."

Recommendations of Executives for Meeting Situation.

The following remedies for unemployment were suggested at a recent meeting of the Personnel and Production Executives' Club: Spreading out available work by adoption of a three- and a half day week; elimination of overtime work, and scheduling production to give uniform employment throughout the year; employment of regular forces in extra maintenance work during slack periods; paying employees for part time during time off; intensive business promotion.

motion that the wires be used to violate the law. Representative Schaeffer of Wisconsin asked him if it was not true that the practice is unlawful in Alabama, and Oliver replied in the affirmative.

Speaking in support of this method of gathering evidence, Representative Finley (Rep.), Kentucky, offered a mock amendment providing that when enforcement agents came to a southern town they should "invite bootleggers, racketeers and other ladies and gentlemen in to talk things over."

Finley asked the wets what sort of evidence they would be willing to use against "these desperate criminals."

Several replied that they would be willing to use any kind of proper evidence unless it was gathered by criminal methods on the Government's part.

Representatives Cochran (Dem.), St. Louis; La Guardia, Progressive Republican, New York, and others were in favor of denouncing wire-tapping, but when the vote was taken, this amendment was defeated by a count of 99 to 77.

On this, as on all the votes, party lines meant nothing, dry Southern Democrats joining with dry administration Republicans in support of the bill as submitted to the House by the Prohibition Bureau.

The use of "stool pigeons" was next attacked. Representative Bacon (Rep.), New York, offered an amendment that would have prohibited any of the enforcement funds from being used to pay spies or undercover men. He reminded the House that Prohibition Director Woodcock had said he would not object if that appropriation were eliminated from the bill. Bacon said it was the sort of thing that "decent opinion cannot condone."

Bacon rushed to the defense of the "stool pigeons," asserting that only through informers of that type could the Government apprehend the "higher-ups" in bootlegging and moonshining. He started to point out what he said were the "good parts" of the Wickerham report, but was greeted with such a barrage of derisive inquiries that he lost patience and said he believed the commission had "made itself ridiculous."

Again the wets seemed to have the argument completely their own way, but when it came to the test of voting, it was the same old story. Bacon's amendment was defeated by a count of 101 to 62, showing that "stool pigeons" are even more popular in the House than wire-tapping.

The propriety of permitting the Government to operate speakeasies for the purpose of trapping violators was the next subject of debate.

Representative Lenthum (Dem.), Maryland, charged the Prohibition Bureau with "making a bootlegger out of Uncle Sam," and offered an amendment to provide that none of the appropriation could be used for that purpose.

Previously it had been disclosed that the Government lost a large amount of money by trapping violators.

Representative Finley got into the debate again by calling attention to the number of police and prohibition officers who have been killed in line of duty.

Finley argued that whatever measures are necessary to catch and convict bootleggers.

Representative Black (Dem.), New York, retorted that "the modern racketeer is the legitimate descendant of the Kentucky moonshiner-except that the racketeer washes his face occasionally."

To this kind of allusion to his native hills, Finley made no reply, or if he did, it was lost in the general laughter.

Once more, however, the wets got the laughter and applause, while the drys got the votes. The count of providing funds for Government speakeasies was 93 to 55.

Another Wet Proposal Falls.

Representative Griffin (Dem.), New York, offered an amendment to prohibit enforcement agents from using Government funds to purchase illicit liquor. It was defeated by a vote of 73 to 42.

The unmistakable impression left by the debate and the voting was that the drys were opposed to any sale or purchase of liquor except on the part of the Government which had prohibited it.

Representative Stafford (Rep.), Wisconsin, offered an amendment that would have prevented prohibition agents from interfering with the sale of malt syrup (from which home brew is made) or grape concentrate (from which home wine is made). It was voted down.

The drys were in the saddle all the way, and they took pains to keep enough of their members on the floor to defeat any wet proposal that was made.

The following remedies for unemployment were suggested at a recent meeting of the Personnel and Production Executives' Club: Spreading out available work by adoption of a three- and a half day week; elimination of overtime work, and scheduling production to give uniform employment throughout the year; employment of regular forces in extra maintenance work during slack periods; paying employees for part time during time off; intensive business promotion.

P. S. CO. TAKING POLL ON GRAVOIS REROUTING

Pamphlets Distributed to Homes
Ask for Vote on Three Proposals.

The St. Louis Public Service Co. is asking residents of South St. Louis to vote on its proposals to reroute the Bellefontaine and Tower Grove car lines, taking the tracks off Gravois avenue when it is widened, and to operate a bus line over Gravois.

Pamphlets distributed to homes and on Bellefontaine and Tower Grove cars contain a statement of the company's plans and a ballot to be marked yes or no on three proposals:

First, "I am in favor of the high speed, direct bus line running from Carondelet Park, through the Gravois and Cherokee business districts, to the downtown district.

Second, "I am in favor of straightening and speeding up the Tower Grove line by rerouting it according to the suggested plan."

Third, "I am in favor of improving the Bellefontaine line by rerouting it direct over California and Lafayette avenues."

The company has requested that the ballots be returned by tomorrow.

now so that the results may be placed before the city's Board of Public Service next Tuesday. It is intended also to submit the results to the State Public Service Commission, which will hold a hearing later on the company's application for permission to remove the tracks from Gravois avenue.

It is proposed that the Bellefontaine cars use Lafayette avenue between 16th and 18th streets, and California avenue instead of Gravois and other streets. This would eliminate several turns.

The Tower Grove cars would follow Arsenal street to Ninth street instead of turning on Gravois and other streets. This also would avoid several turns.

The answer was filed before Circuit Judge Hartmann yesterday by State Finance Commissioner Cantley, in behalf of the Title Guaranty Trust Co. to the petition for a receiver for the company. The answer sets forth that on Jan. 15 assets of the corporation were taken over by the Finance Commissioner for the purpose of liquidating them and turning over to the receiver. Authority for such action was contended by his counsel, Robert J. Kretsch, and Harry N. Soffer, is conferred upon the Commissioner by law and the fact that he is now in charge operates as a bar to the receiver.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Aggressive professional operations for the rise were resumed on the stock market today, notably in some of the utility and motor stocks. The market saged a little profit taking for a time during the afternoon, but moved briskly in the final session and closed around the day's high levels. Sales approximated 2,500,000 shares. Strength of the bond market was also well maintained. Heaviness of the gains was apparently ignored by the security markets.

In the utilities, issues of the Electric Bond & Share group were Light rising about 4 points in a large turnover, American Power & Light and American & Foreign Power. Consolidated Gas shot up 4. General Motors gained a point in active trading.

Shares rising about 2 points included North American, Bethlehem Steel, American Can, John Morrell, General Electric, in front, Rock Island and Atchison, Clegg and Eastman gained about 3 and Allied Chemical made an extreme gain of 8, part of which was lost. Bethlehem Steel gained more than 2. U. S. Steel, American Telephone closed up about a point.

Grains were affected by easy foreign markets and bearish weather reports. Copper remained dull, with little speculative metal offered as low as 9 1/2 cents, which duplicates last fall's 20-year minimum. Cotton closed about steady 5 points higher to 3 lower.

Foreign exchanges were largely firm, although sterling eased off somewhat after rallying 1/2 to 4 1/2%, and early firmness in the franc failed to hold.

The statement of Owen D. Young, head of General Electric, that it seemed certain the depression had struck bottom, lent encouragement.

Statistical Surveys.
Fresh statistical surveys continue to show that business has shown strong resistance to depression November. The Federal Reserve Board's monthly survey showed that its index of industrial production dropped only 2 per cent in December. Moody's prosperity index, as disclosed for December, showed a negligible drop, after the sharp drop of November. McGraw Hill's "Business Week" said, "The ability of business to hold the line is becoming impressive, and is far

BERG DEFENDS JUNIOR WELTER TITLE IN BOUT WITH HESS, TONIGHT

BAT BATTALINO
OPPOSES SHEA IN SEMIFINAL MATCH ON CARD

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Goldie Hess, blond, freckle-faced youngster from Los Angeles, will have a chance to win the world's junior welterweight championship tonight when he engages Jack "Kid" Berg, spectacular British boxer, in the 140-pound championship, in a 10-round battle.

Hess and Berg share the headline role on the Chicago Stadium card with Bat Battalino, world's featherweight champion, who is meeting Eddie Shea, rugged Chicago contender. Both contests are scheduled for 10 rounds, but the featherweight battle is a nonchampionship affair, as Shea agreed to weigh in above the class limit of 126 pounds.

Shea scaled 127 1/2 this afternoon and Battalino, at 130, was four pounds over the limit.

Berg weighed 134 1/2 and Hess weighed 134.

Berg recently returned to America from London and has not been at the weigh-in since defeating Billy Petrolle in New York last October. However, the popular little English boxer probably will enter the ring as a prohibitive favorite, as he is generally conceded to carry too many guns for Hess.

There is a possibility, however, that the Pacific Coast youngster may come up with an upset triumph due to Berg's six months' absence from the ring. Hess, in better condition than at the time he fought Tony Canzoneri in New York several months ago, figures he has an excellent chance to win.

Battalino will be engaging in his first bout since he defeated Kid O'Brien in a 15-round bout in defense of his title in New York last month. Sheas, always a menacing contender in the featherweight division, jumped to the top rank of challengers when he scored an upset victory over Fidel La Barba in Cleveland last December.

The appearance of two champions in the same ring gave indications that 15,000 to 18,000 fans will witness tonight's battles, with gate receipts approximately $50,000 to $55,000.

Another son of the British empire, Johnny Peters, a fast-stepping, sharp-hitting bantamweight, also will appear on the program. He is George Ernie Peters, full-blooded Chipewyan Indian youngster, who fought Middleweight Frankie Genaro and other topnotchers as a flyweight. The balance of the program brings together Ralph Lenny, sharp-shooting lightweight of Jersey City, and Marty Stone of Detroit, and Willie Oster, Boston light-heavyweight, and Buck Esterling of Chicago.

SCHAAF 8 TO 5 FAVORITE TO WIN OVER BRADDOCK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Ernie Schaaf, husky Boston heavyweight, returns to Madison Square Garden tonight to batte James J. Braddock, erstwhile light heavyweight contender, in a 10-round bout.

Schaaf, one of the most effective of the young heavies, rules an 8-to-5 favorite over Braddock, who returns to the ring after a three months' layoff.

The Boston battler in the last year has been upsetting favorites with monotonous regularity. He holds no decisions over Tommy Loughran and outpointed the highly-touted Pacific Coast slugger, Max Baer, in his last Garden engagement.

Braddock, after fighting his way into a title bout with Loughran in the light heavyweight division and taking a fine boxing lesson for his pains, has deserted the 175-pounders to see how he fares with the heavyweights. Braddock is a slow mover and a slow puncher, but carries a tremendous load of dynamite in his right hand. His most sensational victories as a light heavyweight were knock-out triumphs over Gerald Ambrose (Tuffy) Griffiths and Jimmy Statler.

WYKOFF, ST. LOUIS, IS HURT, GUS SONNENBERG WINS BEFORE 14,000

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Jan. 23.—Gus Sonnenberg, former claimant of the heavyweight wrestling title, won a victory over Lee Wykoff of St. Louis last night when the latter, in his first bout, was unable to ring while attempting to administer a flying tackle. Each grappler had taken a fall and they were battling for the deciding throw when the accident occurred.

Sonnenberg took the first fall in 27 minutes with a flying tackle. Wykoff evened the count in 22 minutes with an arm scissoring and body lock.

They had wrestled eight minutes more before Wykoff hurtled through the ropes and was disabled. In that time, he appeared to be having the better of the former Dartmouth football star.

McBride "O" FIVE WINS.
The McBride "O" basketball team defeated the St. Louis U. High team, 14 to 12, yesterday afternoon on the losers' floor. Both of McBride and Kinsel of St. Louis U. High, who each scored six points, were high scorers.

CHICKEN CURRY AN EXAMPLE OF HIGHLY-SEASONED FOOD

Favorite Dishes of the Day Are of The Spanish and Mexican Type.

One pound of cooked chicken cut in small pieces, one onion, two tablespoons of butter, one sour apple, one fourth cup of ground fish, coconut, fine cinnamon, nutmeg, six cloves, one teaspoon curry powder, one-half teaspoon salt, a few grains of red pepper, two tablespoons of browned flour, one cup of water or chicken stock. Cook the chicken, onion and apples gently in the butter about 20 minutes or long enough to brown the chicken carefully.

Mix the curry powder with the flour, and salt and stir into the pan, then add the liquid and stir constantly until it boils and is smooth.

Shell the cardamons, tie them with the cloves in a bit of newly soaked cheesecloth, and add these to the mixture with the coconut, which must be stirred in.

Simmer for 20 minutes longer, take out the spices and serve with boiled rice and condiments.

This is really better if made the day before it is to be used, then gently and thoroughly heated up.

RECIPES FOR DISHES IN WEEK'S MENUS

Most of the Good Things Outlined Cater to the Family's Sweet Tooth.

Fruited sauces add distinction to roast and baked meats and fowl. This orange sauce is particularly adapted for roast duck service.

Orange Sauce.

When the duck is done, remove it from the pan, pour off the fat and add one-half cup water to the juice in the pan. Let boil up once or twice, then strain and add the juice of two small oranges—three-fourth cupful. Sprinkle with two tablespoons shaved orange peel and season with salt and pepper. Just before serving add one cup diced orange pulp and pour around the duck.

Butterscotch Cookies.

Mix one and one-half cups shortening, at least half of which is butter, with two cups of soft brown sugar and rub to a smooth cream. Add two eggs and beat until thoroughly blended. Sift two cups flour with one and one-half teaspoons baking powder and one-fourth teaspoon baking soda, and then add three-fourths cup finely chopped nuts, preferably walnuts or pecans. Add to the egg mixture and, if necessary, stir in more flour to make a dough that can be handled to shape into a roll about two inches thick.

Wrap in waxed paper and chill thoroughly—it may be left in the icebox overnight. Cut down in thin slices, place on a greased pan and bake in hot oven—400 degrees—for eight to 10 minutes.

Fudge Cake.

Melt four squares of unsweetened chocolate over hot water. While this is melting, rub together one-third cup shortening and one cup sugar until they form a smooth cream. Add two egg yolks and beat again. Then stir in one cup sour milk and one teaspoon vanilla extract. Sift two cups cake flour with one-fourth teaspoon baking soda and two teaspoons baking powder and add. Next stir in the melted chocolate and when well blended, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs.

Pour into a greased pan about two and one-half inches deep. Bake in moderate oven—350 to 375 degrees—for 30 minutes. Cover with a thick chocolate icing, or cut in squares and serve with a ball of vanilla ice cream and hot fudge sauce on each square.

Sweet Potato Pie.

Boil mealy sweet potatoes until tender, then cool slightly, peel and mash. Measure two cups of the mashed potatoe for a medium-sized pie. This will take anywhere from two to four potatoes, depending on size. Drain the mashed potatoes through a coarse strainer to have them very smooth. Add one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon grated lemon rind, one cup sugar, one tablespoon lemon juice and two tablespoons flavoring sherry. Next stir in three well-beaten eggs and then one and one-half cups rich milk. Pour into a pie plate lined with pastry and bake in a hot oven—450 degrees—for 10 minutes, then reduce the heat sharply to 350 degrees and finish cooking. This takes about 35 minutes longer—the pie should be firm to the touch when done. Serve warm or cold, with plain or with whipped cream or meringue.

Steamed Fig Pudding.

Sift together three-fourths cup flour, one-half cup sugar, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon baking soda, one-half teaspoon cinnamon and one teaspoon ginger. Add one-half cup grated raw carrot and one cup finely cut figs. Mix one-fourth cup molasses with one-fourth cup milk and stir in. Mix well, pour into a small mold—two half-pound baking powder cans are good, or individual tart molds. Cover and place in a can of boiling water—enough water to half cover the molds. Cover the pan and boil slowly for two hours. Replace the water from time to time as it boils away. Serve hot with lemon or cream sauce.

Ginger Wafers.

Cream together one-fourth cup shortening and three-fourths cup sugar. Then add one egg and beat well. Sift one and one-third cups flour with one-fourth teaspoon salt, one and one-half teaspoons ginger, one teaspoon baking powder. Add to the first mixture alternately with two tablespoons milk. Mix well and spread in a thin even layer on the bottom of an inverted, greased baking pan. Sprinkle with sugar and mark in squares or stars. Bake in moderate oven—375 degrees for 12 minutes or until delicately browned. Remove from pan as soon as done. If the wafers become brittle before you can take them from the pan, put back in the oven for a minute. Makes about four dozen small wafers.

Cranberry Float.

Make it by crushing very fine, enough raw cranberries to make one scant cupful. Beat the whites of two eggs just a little and then begin adding granulated sugar until you have incorporated two cupfuls, alternately with the berries. Beat vigorously until the float becomes very light and airy and puffy, then partially freeze in the mechanical refrigerator or the freezer. Fill high in tall slender glasses and top with a rosette of whipped cream.

A RIGHT AND A WRONG WAY TO COOK VEGETABLES

Too Long Cooking and Too Much Water Are Not Considered Necessary.

Many whole vegetables are made unpalatable and less nutritious by too long cooking or by the wrong method of cooking.

The vitamin content of vegetables is one of their most important constituents; too long cooking and too much water tend to destroy a large percentage of these vitamins, and also to diminish the flavor.

Many vegetables can cook in their own juices if given the right start, or at most need only a few tablespoons of water.

Celery, peas, carrots, spinach, string beans, squash, etc., require no more than just enough water to cover the bottom of the pan when they are cooked in. The heat will cause them to steam and to release their own juices.

Season with salt when cooked, and cook only long enough to make them tender—from 10 to 20 minutes.

SWEET POTATO DISHES NOW CULINARY SUCCESSES

New Vegetables Offer Such Possibilities for Effective Combinations.

The festive dinner, ordinarily includes in the menu potatoes. Sweet potatoes are often used in place of the white variety.

Festive potato dishes are readily prepared. Here are recipes for two such treats.

Stuffed Sweet Potatoes.

Scoop out the center of baked sweet potatoes and mash with sweet butter, salt, and chestnuts which have been cooked in syrup made of one part sugar with two parts water. Add marshmallows cut into small pieces and refill the potato shells. Cover with alternate slices of banana and marshmallows, brown in a hot oven.

Sweet Potato Glaze.

Cut bananas into boiled sweet potatoes into rounds, one-fourth inch thick and fry in butter. Place alternate slices of marshmallows, banana and sweet potato on a plate to form a circle. Cover with apricot pulp and glaze in a hot oven.

About the Soup Course.

Thin soups made of vegetables and fruits are good source of mineral salt, but have little actual nourishment. They are excellent to stimulate the appetite. On the

FRUITED DESSERTS HAVE GREAT APPETITE APPEAL

Winter Season Is the Ideal Time of the Year to Serve Them.

Fruit desserts meet the approval of most members of a family. Recipes for two very delicious dishes follow:

Date Pudding.

Scald two cups milk and pour over one cup fine dry bread crumbs. Mix thoroughly, sugar and two tablespoons butter and let the mixture stand until the crumbs are soft. Then add two well beaten egg yolks, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon grated lemon rind and one cup finely cut pitted dates. Fold in one stiffly beaten egg white and pour into a buttered baking dish. Bake in a slow oven for 25 to 30 minutes, or until firm. If it is difficult to regulate your oven heat, place the pudding in a pan of hot water while cooking. Serve warm, with foamy sauce made by pouring one-half cup lemon pudding sauce into one stiffly beaten egg white. For the sauce, mix one-fourth cup sugar with two tablespoons corn starch and stir into one-half cup boiling water. Boil for five minutes and add one-fourth cup lemon juice.

Apple Whip.

Soak one tablespoon gelatin in one-fourth cup cold water for five minutes. Heat one cup sweetened, thick apple sauce to the boiling point, stir in the soaked gelatin and stir until the gelatin is dissolved. Cool and when cold and just beginning to stiffen, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs and one-half cup whipped cream. Chill and serve with a custard sauce made from the egg yolks, or with grated maple sugar and chopped walnuts.

Pot Roast With Onions.

Scald meat very brown in Dutch oven; do not add water. Put on cover and cook over low flame two and one-half hours for a five-pound roast. During the last half-hour of roasting add six onions.

SUPERBA CHICKEN RAVIOLIS

and delicious SUPERBA Mushroom Gravy! Made in a spotless, modern plant in sunny California, according to old Italian recipes famous for countless years for their wonderful flavor.

SOUFFLES ARE IDEAL COMPANY DESSERTS

One of These Sweets an Appropriate Finish to a Heavy or a Rich Meal.

In commenting on the elaborateness of the desserts encountered, food experts lament the fact that souffles are served so seldom.

It might be a good thing if American home cooks knew more about these light and delicate desserts that make such an elegant ending to a meal, and yet that are simple to make and not difficult of digestion.

They may be made in a number of flavors and varieties, but the main difficulty in serving them—that is the hot ones—is that they must stand after cooking—in other words, they must be served as soon as they are done.

There is one reason why we meet them so seldom in this country, for in our servantless households there is a seeking for foods that can be prepared and left in the oven or in the icebox until ready to be served.

Souffles are of two kinds—hot and cold. Hot souffles are the more delicate; their main difficulty is that they must be served as soon as they are cooked or they "flop." Cold souffles are made with gelatin, corn starch, tapioca, with egg whites or yolks, and are similar to charlotte or whistler.

Hot souffles, or cold, too, for that matter, should be very light and fluffy and are always served from the dish in which they are baked. Generally speaking they are more attractive when served in individual dishes, though one large one is often preferred. They may be made from fruit, chocolate, chestnuts, or are sometimes simply flavored with vanilla or other extracts. Most of the hot souffles may be made from the same basic recipe. The one given here was supplied by an American-French friend, modified in proportions to serve four persons.

Basic Souffle Recipe.

Melt two tablespoons butter, add three tablespoons flour and stir over a slow fire until well blended. Then stir in one-half cup milk and cook, stirring constantly, until very thick and smooth. Beat two egg yolks with two tablespoons sugar until they form a thick creamy mixture. Add the hot sauce gradually, stirring constantly. This may stand if necessary until about just before the meal is to be served. Then beat the whites of two eggs until stiff. Fold them into the sauce and pour into a buttered baking dish. Put this into a hot oven—400 degrees—when the dinner is put on the table and let it cook while eating the main course and the salad. It will take from 20 to 25 minutes if the dish is moderately deep. If the souffle is done before ready to serve, it must be turned out of the oven, but keep the oven doof closed. The souffle may stand under these conditions for a few minutes, but if left too long it will fall flat. Serve with any preferred pudding sauce, depending on the flavor of the souffle.

Variations in Flavor.

One teaspoon vanilla makes a vanilla souffle; one teaspoon grated orange rind and two tablespoons orange juice, an orange souffle. One-half cup thick apricot, peach or plum pulp added to the sauce before the egg whites are folded in make fruit souffles of these flavors. Three squares of melted, unsweetened chocolate and one teaspoon vanilla turn it into a chocolate souffle. One-half cup ground, blanched almonds, or boiled and shelled French chestnuts, finely chopped, produce an almond or chestnut souffle.

SANTA CLARA PRUNE CAKE IS AN UNUSUAL SWEETMEAT

Pastry, Fruit Filling, Custard and Meringue Enter Into Making It.

For the pastry use one-half cup sugar, one-fourth cup shortening, one-half cup milk, one egg, one and one-fourth cups flour, two and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt and one teaspoon vanilla.

Cream shortening with sugar and add beaten egg and milk. Combine with flour sifted with baking powder and salt. Add vanilla and beat thoroughly. Pour in one greased layer cake pan. Bake 25 minutes in moderate oven until cold, cut off the top of the cake by cutting around the cake about one-half inch from the edge, and sliding the knife under toward center.

Prune filling is made with one cup cooked sweetened prunes, two-thirds cup prune juice and one tablespoon cornstarch.

Remove pits from prunes and cut in pieces. Mix cornstarch with prune juice, add to prunes, and cook until mixture boils, stirring constantly.

The custard filling is made with two cups milk, one-fourth cup sugar, two tablespoons cornstarch, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two egg yolks and one-half teaspoon vanilla.

Scald milk. Mix sugar with cornstarch and salt. Moisten with a little cold milk, add egg yolk and stir into hot milk. Continue stirring until custard is thick and smooth. Remove from fire, cool, and add vanilla.

Meringue for the cake takes two egg whites, one-fourth cup sugar and one-fourth teaspoon vanilla.

Beat egg whites stiff, add sugar gradually, beating all the time. Add vanilla. Spread the prune filling over the bottom part of cake; cover with top piece of cake, and spread with remaining custard. Cover entire cake with meringue. Bake in hot oven until brown. Serve at once.

STEAMED PUDDING FAVORED

Old Way Called for Boiling Them in a Cloth.

Steamed puddings make good winter desserts; and modern methods of cooking these have dispelled the old idea that they are indigestible.

The old-fashioned steamed or boiled pudding was served with a thick layer of doughy substance on the outside, due to the fact that it was boiled in a floured cloth.

Todays' cook uses a water-tight bowl, or a pudding mold that keeps the water from touching the pudding, and cooks it by steaming.

In this way a product as light and as dry as baked pudding is attained, but with a flavor that is distinctly different.

SOME CLEVER HELPS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A Terse Short Paragraph Oftentimes Contains a Lot of Wisdom.

Put pieces of toasted bread into soups or gravies which are too salty, take them out in a few minutes and it will be found that the bread has absorbed a good portion of the salt.

If a little flour is sprinkled in the frying pan just before chicken or fish is put in the grease will not spatter.

Pack leftover mashed potatoes into a bowl and store them in a cold place. The next day the potatoes can be shaped into balls or cakes or used as a covering for meat pie.

Always add a little melted butter to uncooked frosting. It improves the flavor and also prevents cracking.

The food value is the same in both the tender and tough cuts of meat.

Fry minkin Indian pudding in double boiler when you have no oven to cook it in. It tastes just as good, although you have no outer crust. Cook about one hour.

Cook enough cereal at one time to use for at least two days. Pour a tablespoonful of cold water over the top and when the cereal is stored in the icebox a hard crust will not form on the top.

To clarify fat, melt the fat, add one pared and sliced raw potato, a pinch of soda and a tablespoon of water. Heat slowly and cook until the fat stops bubbling, strain through double cheesecloth.

When you have fish to fry, dip in milk before rolling in flour; it will be very brown.

When preparing beverages made of a combination of fruit juices, they must be blended carefully, or the milder flavors will be eclipsed by the heavy and more highly flavored fruits.

Beets will retain their color if a pinch of bicarbonate of soda is added to the water in which they are boiled.

Leftover canned tuna mixed with celery and salad dressing makes a very good sandwich filling.

Let window sticks, rub the window cords with lemon. The window will then run up smoothly.

In the housewife's daily battle to serve three meals a day without monotony, victory is often won by some trick of attractive garnishing. Old foods take on new interest when served with a touch of novelty.

Helpful Culinary Ideas.

Put lemon juice in applesauce to remove flatness.

To make cut glass sparkle, dip a small brush in lemon juice and scrub the glass with it.

One-half teaspoon soda sweetens one cup sour milk.

To freshen lettuce and greens place in cold water with lemon juice.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO.

HARRY's mother and sister, his only near relatives, had been over to Brooklyn to call upon the girl that Harry had astonishingly announced his intention to marry. They had been rather horrified when he had told them who she was and her circumstances. Mrs. Martin, who had hoped for a "good match" for her son, had been disconsolate in the silent depths of her heart, but she was a very nice little person and not overmuch of a snob. She knew that Harry was happy, and, as she loved him very dearly, she persuaded herself that she would be content with that.

The house in Brooklyn appealed to her somewhat. She was not used to little brick houses, each the image of its neighbor, all in a row, with ash cans sitting on the ground after all, what small difference save in price, there between such rows and between the rabbit-warrens of the huge apartment houses? She and her daughter Mary, liked Mrs. Warren and the girls and fell promptly in love with Gladys, just as their son and brother had done before them.

Gladys was prettier. She had gained animation. She was very obviously eager to please Harry's people and be liked by them but not in any apologetic or deprecating manner. Gladys knew her worth because she had not thought much about it. She was pretty and gentle and talented and she and Harry and Harry loved her and that was all there was to be said about it. And Mrs. Martin, recalling the "good matches" of Harry's set, so many of them overpaid, underdressed, loud voiced, going the pace until they looked 35 at 20. Yes, Harry, following his heart, had done very well.

HARRY was following his "hunches" too. He had at last been admitted by Bob Stevens into all the mysteries of the new polish. At present the two of them were wracking their brains to devise a short striking name for the product.

"I meant when I told that I'd try and find a backer for this business," he told Bob seriously. "I'll hunt around. Of course, I know half a dozen men with the money and three with the proper spirit of adventure. But that isn't all we need. We need more than money and a fellow willing to take a chance. We need someone with business experience. Because if he goes into it then we know we're not off."

In the meantime, he amused and bored himself with thinking of names—he soon had the entire Warren family playing this game... and devising future advertising schemes. If the thing ever came to anything, he'd see to it that the advertising was a knockout, he promised Bob.

The inventor and his friend went through a number of those torturing experiences which come to everyone who has something to take to market. Harry, by virtue of his large acquaintance, both personal and in business, also by virtue of his modest partnership in the firm of Weston & Sterns, went browsing among his friends and strangers to see if he could find anyone to rise to his—and Bob's—aid.

One or two or more rose to the occasion and there were hurried conferences and "samples" and demonstrations. But it all came to nothing. Merely Bob, and, in a lesser degree, Harry, lived through agonizing days while their prospective backer was "thinking it over." Then one day always dawned when it was evident that the gentilman had thought and it was "over" in the saddest possible sense.

"Like a death in the family," Harry gloomed to Bob, who was forced to laugh despite his bitter disappointment.

These efforts alone new business lines were conducted before Harry had his own job to attend to, and Bob, now assistant manager of the garage, his—and his was a hard one, for it meant turning to with the rest of the mechanics any time of day and being a better man than any of them.

And both had "girls."

BETTY was very happy at the outcome of Harry's wooing. She could not have given Gladys into better hands, she thought, as always picturing herself, quite unconsciously, as head of the little household. Mrs. Warren, somehow, how, didn't count. She was there, her children loved her, but if a decision was to be reached they did not come to their mother. They came to Betty, if they couldn't work it out for themselves.

But there was a little added worry attached to Gladys happy engagement. For Betty, looking ahead after the沉寂ness and delight and excitement had passed, realized although she hated to face it—that Gladys as a potential wage earner for the family did not exist any longer. Of course, she had not contributed anything much from her little school salary... and she had saved all the money earned at her sketching—with the exception of that which she had gladly sacrificed to Harry's comfort in the hospital—for further lessons.

Harry and Gladys would not be in their lives together as simply

Smart Costumes for Every Day

By ANN ROBERTS

Three types of frocks to be worn under winter coats. They will carry over successfully into spring.

THIS is just the time of year when every woman begins to long for something new, something fresh to wear. She shouldn't, on any economical principle—yes, I know that, but I also know that she does.

It seems such a long, long wait until one can legitimately think of spring clothes, and the winter ones are at least a month or two old. Sometimes they are even twice that age, and the fashion instinct that lives eternally in a woman's soul begins to cry out loudly for expression.

It is still cold and will be for several months to come. You have your fur-trimmed fur coat and the big, wide, wide coat now is to get something to wear under it that will be all fresh and smiling when you remove that coat indoors.

The new, advance, very early spring clothes are beginning to appear in the shops, and among them are many that will be simply perfect for wear of this sort.

IRST I want to mention the new urge for plaids and stripes. They are high style and very good just now. But if you want to be quite ultra—someones in the new where fashion and smartness are concerned—then step in and buy yours at once before they take on any semblance of undue popularity.

I have a dress of yellow and black plaid. It was made with the plaid on the bias—a little overjacket with short sleeves that tied about the waist.

This would be an excellent thing to buy because it will be just as good, next summer as it is now. Yellow, as before mentioned, is the season's very swellest color, and if you can wear it at all this is the time when you should take your courage in your hands and have a dress with at least something yellow about it.

And then there are the striped frocks, or those combined of striped and plain materials. I have one, which is illustrated here, in a skirt and monkey jacket of plain dark blue soft woolen material. Then there was a sleeveless blouse of striped silk in greens and reds and yellows, the stripes running to point down the bodice, this showing only enough to give a bright hint of color. For the jacket then there was a scarf of the same striped silk lined with the material from which the suit was made.

It could wind about the throat like blouses all done in fine plaid—most enticingly and the effect of the whole was almost too fresh and good to be true.

Paisley prints are good too—paisley blouses all done in fine plaid—these to be worn with the little thin woolen suits that are designed with little short, square monkey jackets.

For you have a brown coat, for instance, and are wearing a yellow dress, then keep all of your accessories brown and you will be certain of the best effect. If your coat is black and you are wearing a red or a pastel dress, then see that your accessories are all black, from your shoes right to your hat. It does not do to try to mix colored accessories with this sort of ensemble.

For the silk dresses Canton crepe is the fabric to be chosen. It is so much smarter this year than the flat crepe, and it seems to have a manner of draping which is most particularly suited to the most modern type of frock.

bright if the room is dark.

First impressions always matter. The hall can instantly make your guests feel either glad or sorry that they are entering your home.

ONE suit of this sort had a red and black plaid skirt which was worn with a double-breasted jacket of black silk of which the buttons, covered with the same plaid, were the outstanding feature.

Dresses of one plain and fascinating color are all the rage for wear under fur coats. The color, however, must be something out standing—yellow (I repeat this yellow) or one of the new reds, or one of the sad pastels.

These frocks are made, when they are very much in the Vionnet manner, with set-in pieces to form the hips and the shaping of the yoke and with scurfs of interestingly draped neckline treatments.

It is certain, however, if you object that heating milk destroys a portion of its food value, and under the influence of this impression raw milk has been considered as "more healthy" than pasteurized milk.

The experiments were undertaken as a test of these assertions. Two sets of comparable experimental animals were fed—one raw milk through the spring and summer, and it is a tone which, if you can wear it at all, continues always to be a wearable thing. Combined with black or brown or yellow, it is extremely good.

With any of these dresses mentioned the plainer the accessories worn the better. Match your darker color and keep your shoes, bag, hat and gloves to that shade. The darker tone, of course, will be at the present moment the one established by the color of your coat.

Both sets of animals were compared on the basis of general physical appearance, health during the period of the experiments, weight and growth as well as chemical composition of their bones.

The experiment was repeated three times. In none of them was found that the animals fed pasteurized milk were in any respect less healthy or less well-developed than those fed on raw milk.

On the contrary, during one experiment all animals fed on raw milk became fat and most of them died of an intestinal disturbance.

Pasteurized milk, then, is less food value than raw milk. It is, however, much more safe. The heating process does destroy some of the vitamin quality of the milk.

This may, however, be overcome by including in the diet cod-liver oil, fruits and vegetables.

Food Value of Milk. A series of experiments recently was conducted at the University of Illinois in which food values of raw milk were compared with those of pasteurized milk.

The value of these experiments to be found in the following: health authorities are agreed that with the exception of breast milk by a healthy mother to a nursing infant, all milk to be used for human consumption should be pasteurized.

Success in Psychology

How Miss Marguerite Johnston Won a High Post in the St. Louis School System.

By MARIAN WYLE

"A SSISTANT in charge of mental testing in the Division of Tests and Measurements of the St. Louis Public Schools" is the very long and complicated title which Miss Marguerite Johnston now bears. Actually—and far more simply—Miss Johnston is known as psychologist for the St. Louis school system—a most important position usually held by a man.

Miss Johnston relates that, as a child, she refused to join in the games her playmates unless she could be the "teacher." Moreover, at an early age she showed a bent for the psychological—demonstrated by an instance which she has never forgotten. It seemed that at a certain age she had a name, bore of simply bearing a name, bore.

The description alluded to Miss Johnston ran somewhat like this: "For one who is always analyzing her friends and predicting what they are going to do before they do it!"

Although not wealthy, Miss Johnston's family was very comfortably situated and not at all anxious to have her follow career. She, however, by dint of persuasion, overcame their scruples and decided upon teaching as her

"I had," she said, "always been very much interested in children and, unconsciously, I looked forward to holding the position of authority which I had dreamed of since the time when I held the ruler in our childish games."

MISS JOHNSTON'S first teaching position upon her graduation from Harris College was with the third grade of the Marquette School. Although new to the work, she found herself immediately at home with her class and, strange to say, particularly with more difficult members of it. She enjoyed studying them—try various methods of procedure until she finally hit upon the proper method of making them conform.

Miss Johnston soon realized, however, that without a college degree her teaching career would be limited and she was not content with the prospect of teaching elementary classes indefinitely. She therefore sacrificed her vacations and attended the Chicago University for three consecutive summers, meanwhile studying by correspondence during winter evenings. At the end of her third summer at the university, she determined to stay on and obtain the necessary credits instead of returning to school. This she did and the following June saw her with the long-desired degree in her possession. A college degree meant that a teacher was eligible to take high school classes which entailed not only her pay but also more interesting work. Consequently, there was long line of applicants waiting for high school teaching positions—one of them on the list two years more until the year finally came for a young teacher to receive a position immediately upon acquiring her college degree—but Miss Johnston managed to accomplish this feat.

DURING her last year at the university she heard of a new subject which was about to be introduced into the curriculum. This subject was an explanation of the different positions, the opportunities offered by each one, characteristics and education necessary for success in that particular field, range of salaries, etc. Realizing that there would be a demand for teachers of this subject, and being very much interested in it as well, Miss Johnston took the necessary courses and, immediately upon her graduation, was offered a position in a St. Louis high school.

Urged on by a desire to know more than her studies at the University of Chicago had taught her, Miss Johnston at once started preparing for her master's degree, which she obtained after four summers at Columbia University in New York.

In the meanwhile, during the course of her work, she noticed that there were a surprising number of students who wrote failing in all subjects. Miss Johnston asked permission to give these students individual mental tests and she discovered that many of them were failing for reasons other than mere inability to do the work. In one particular case a child who had a natural bent towards the scientific and whose father instead had forced him to study manual training, failed completely in this latter subject but made good as soon as he was removed to the former course.

In the beginning, Miss Johnston was given only one or two hours a day for her tests, but as time went on and she proved how valuable they could be, her teaching hours were gradually shortened to allow her more time for her new work.

Miss Johnston also persuaded the principal of the school to adopt group testing, and she herself at first took charge of giving intelligence tests to entire classes.

Just at this time Dr. J. Wallin, psychologist for the public schools, resigned and since it was in the middle of the year, she was asked to substitute for him until the end of the year. This she did with such outstanding success that when the period of her substitution drew to a close, she was definitely installed in Dr. Wallin's place.

Today Miss Johnston, in addition to her work of giving mental

DAILY STORY FOR CHILDREN

By Mary Graham Bonner

SKY Baseball. THE children had come back from their lessons and their recess, which had all taken place while they were flying in the air. John and Peggy had been watching everything that had happened while sitting near the open air school house, which was upon a big dirigible landing platform up in the air.

"I'll have to speak to the teacher and see if she will give the children extra time for recess today," the Little Black Clock told John and Peggy.

"Yes," he said, as he came back to them after a moment or two, "she has said that in honor of our visit she would dismiss school for the day."

As soon as the children landed in their planes John spoke to several of the boys.

"Can you play baseball?" he asked.

"Can we?" they exclaimed. "Why, our school won the pennant last year!"

The Little Black Clock had gone on to talk to the teacher, leaving John and Peggy to talk to the children of the open air school.

But now the teacher came back. "School is dismissed for the rest of the day," she announced as the children cheered. "You can use the baseball field if you wish this afternoon, and I'll tell your parents not to worry if you're a little late in getting home."

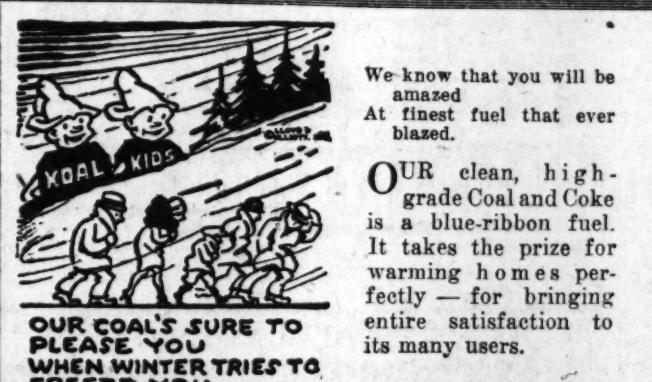

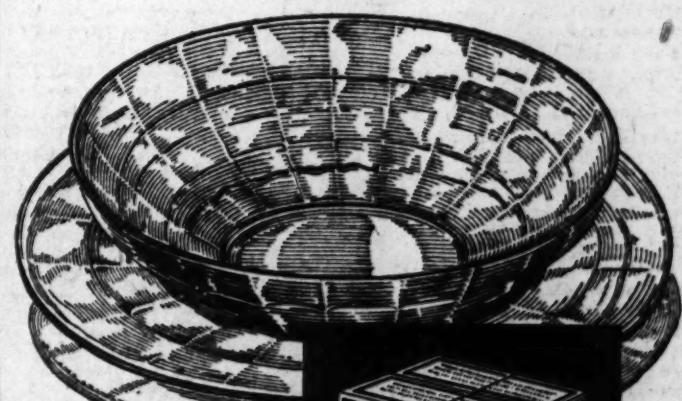

Oh, how the children cheered. "Where do you live?" Peggy asked.

"We live in the town almost directly below us down on the earth, but this is such a fine school that our parents all send us up here each day," they told her.

Now the boys were planning how they would divide up for the team. All the best players divided up so the two teams now to play would be evenly matched. John said he would like to play shortstop!

John wondered how they would play!

PAIN after eating

WHAT many call "indigestion" is very often nothing but excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sour. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. The best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard anti-acid in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this more pleasant way. A small bottle is sufficient to show its merit.

Be sure to get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for more than 50 years in correcting excess acid. 35¢ and 50¢ a bottle; any drug store. Complete directions for its many uses are enclosed with every bottle.

The Genuine Milk of Magnesia is always a liquid—never a tablet. Look for the Phillips' name on bottle.

under winter coats. They will carry over successfully into spring.

ONE suit of this sort had a red and black plaid skirt which was worn with a double-breasted jacket of black silk or which the buttons, covered with the same plaid, were the outstanding feature.

Dresses of one plain and fascinating color are all the rage for wear under fur coats. The color, however, must be something outstanding—yellow (I repeat this yellow) or one of the new reds, or one of the sad pastels.

These frocks are made, when they are very smart, mostly in the Vionnet manner, with set-in pieces to form the hips and the shaping of the yoke and with scarfs of interestingly draped neckline treatments.

Gray is of increasing importance and for dresses of this general character it is all too lovely. If you are one of those whose complexion is fresh enough to stand the wearing of gray, then by all means buy a dress of that color now. It, too, will be good all through the spring and summer, and it is a tone which, if you can wear it at all, continues always to be a wearable thing. Combined with black or brown or yellow, it is extremely good.

The experiments were undertaken as a test of these assertions. Two sets of comparable experimental animals were fed—one raw milk and the other pasteurized milk.

The raw milk no other food, but to guard against the lack of vitamins yeast and cod-liver oil were mixed in with the milk.

Both sets of animals were compared on the basis of general physical appearance, health during the period of the experiments, weight and growth as well as chemical composition of their bones.

The experiment was repeated three times. In none of them was it found that the animals fed pasteurized milk were in any respect less healthy or less well-developed than those fed on raw milk.

On the contrary, during one experiment all animals fed on raw milk became ill and most of them died of an intestinal disturbance.

Pasteurized milk, then, has less food value than raw milk. It is, however, much more safe. The heating process does destroy some of the vitamin quality of the milk. This may, however, be overcome by including in the diet cod-liver oil, fruits and vegetables.

For the silk dresses Canton crepe is the fabric to be chosen. It is so much smoother than the silk that it is supposed it seems to have a manner of draping which is most particularly suited to the most modern type of frock.

HEALTH

Brief articles prepared by experts. Edited by Dr. Iggo Goldstein, for the New York Academy of Medicine.

Food Value of Milk. A series of experiments recently was conducted at the University of Illinois in which the food values of raw milk were compared with those of pasteurized milk.

The value of these experiments to be found in the following: Health authorities are agreed that with the exception of breast milk fed by a healthy mother to a nursing infant, all milk to be used for human consumption should be pasteurized.

In certain quarters, however, it was objected that heating milk destroyed a portion of its food value, and under the influence of this impression raw milk has been considered as "more healthy" than pasteurized milk.

The experiments were undertaken as a test of these assertions. Two sets of comparable experimental animals were fed—one raw milk, the other pasteurized milk.

They received no other food, but to guard against the lack of vitamins yeast and cod-liver oil were mixed in with the milk.

Both sets of animals were compared on the basis of general physical appearance, health, during the period of the experiments, weight, and growth, as well as chemical composition of their bones.

The experiment was repeated three times. In none of them was it found that the animals fed pasteurized milk were in any respect less healthy or less well-developed than those fed on raw milk.

On the contrary, during one experiment all animals fed raw milk became ill and most of them died of an intestinal disturbance.

Pasteurized milk, then, has no less food value than raw milk. It is, however, much more safe. The heating process does destroy some of the vitaminine quality of the milk. This may, however, be overcome by including in the diet cod-liver oil, fruits and vegetables.

Annulment Motions Continued. Several motions in Thomasson's suit for annulment, based on the assertion he was tricked into marriage, were scheduled for hearing before Circuit Judge McElhenny at Clayton today, but were continued until next Tuesday. Rogers declined to accept the letters as authoritative, telling the court: "I know what my client's wishes are. His woman kidnaped him three times before and it's apparent she's done so again."

Mrs. Thomasson has a counter-claim for alimony on file. M. X. Forristal, one of her attorneys, declined to say whether he would accept the written direction to dismiss it. Charles W. McElhenny, attorney of Mrs. Thomasson's lawyers, made a motion to the court to dismiss all litigation, but this was overruled.

All of the letters were sent special delivery and were registered. Directed to: "Clark to the Circuit Court, Clayton, Mo." the first one read:

"A Degree of Reconciliation." "Dear Sir: This is a copy of my letter to Mr. S. C. Rogers, my attorney:

"This is to advise you that a degree of reconciliation has been effected between my wife, Mrs. Grace C. Thomasson and I."

"Wishing to avoid further unnecessary legal fees and like expenditures, we have reached the decision that our affairs can be better settled out of court: Thus you are directed to discontinue at once all legal proceedings pertaining to investigations and the annulment suit pending."

"Mrs. Thomasson will likewise dismiss her attorneys, Mr. Forristal and Mr. Morris."

"At present we are enjoying a pleasant honeymoon."

The signature in the regular position on the letter is shaky and almost unreadable, and a more legible rendering of "H. W. Thomasson" has been written on the lower left-hand side of the sheet.

"Enjoying Second Moneymorn." The other letters purporting to be copies of communications to Morris and Edward Forristal, are almost identical in phrasology with that bearing the Thomasson signature. The one to Forristal states in its concluding paragraph: "We are enjoying our second honeymoon," and the one to Morris concludes: "Kindly refer to letter my husband will direct to you regarding fees for past legal services rendered."

All three give as the return address, 56 Broadway drive, Clayton. The $25,000 home at that address was purchased by Thomasson for his bride last autumn.

HOMASSON AND WIFE REPORTED ON NEW HONEYMOON

Letters Received by Circuit Court Clerk at Clayton Say They Have Patched Up Differences.

IS SUIT SET FOR HEARING TODAY

Police at Carthage, Mo., Declare Capitalist Was Dragged From Hotel by Woman and Chauffeur.

While police were searching for Hugh W. Thomasson, wealthy 72-year-old real estate dealer, who has been missing since Thursday morning, three letters were received by the clerk of the Circuit Court at Clayton today, announcing that Thomasson and his young wife have patched up their marital difficulties and are enjoying a pleasant honeymoon.

However, Stephen C. Rogers, Thomasson's attorney, who had reported the disappearance of his client asserted it's a plain case of kidnaping. Mr. Thomasson has been coerced into signing these letters. The communications, Rogers said, all were in Mrs. Thomasson's handwriting. One of them bore two specimens of what is reported to be Thomasson's signature.

The letters, postmarked yesterday, were mailed in Kansas City, Mo., and a Negro chauffeur, registered at a hotel there Thursday night, declined to go to the room and was dragged out when he asked the hotel clerk for protection.
